THE MANAGER

OWEN COYLE

Good afternoon and a warm welcome to everyone for today's game against Sunderland, including Steve Bruce and his staff, players and the Sunderland fans, plus our match sponsors A&C Auto Salvage and 365 Engines.

We return to the Reebok today for the first time in three weeks following the international break and last Saturday's derby day win away at the DW Stadium. It was an excellent result against a good Wigan side, and at times it is fair to say it felt like a cup tie such was the atmosphere and pace of the game.

We took a large following and the support was nothing short of fantastic. I said after the match it felt as if we had brought 20,000 fans such was the level of the backing, and I was delighted that those who made the journey could make the return trip back to Bolton on Saturday evening with smiles on their faces.

We scored three goals, created a host of scoring chances and, to be fair, could have had five or six. Equally, we looked solid in defence and we restricted them to little, accepting their goal was from a wonder strike. But after Wigan equalised we showed strong character to once again take the lead and then, ultimately, go on to record all three points.

I felt the result was a reward for how the players worked during the fortnight after the Chelsea game in the international break. All I asked of them was to bring the level of the performance that they had been showing in training onto the pitch at Wigan, and they did that. It was a very pleasing afternoon's work.

We have to continue to produce this level of performance, although today we face another tough challenge. Sunderland added to their squad over the summer, with players such as Nicklas Bendtner, Wes Brown, John O'Shea and Connor Wickham all joining the club. They are also led by an experienced manager in Steve Bruce, so we have to be at the top of our game from the first whistle to the last today.

The players know that and they are also aware that we have had some superb support at home and away this season. Once again, we have a part to play in giving the fans something to cheer and shout about today.

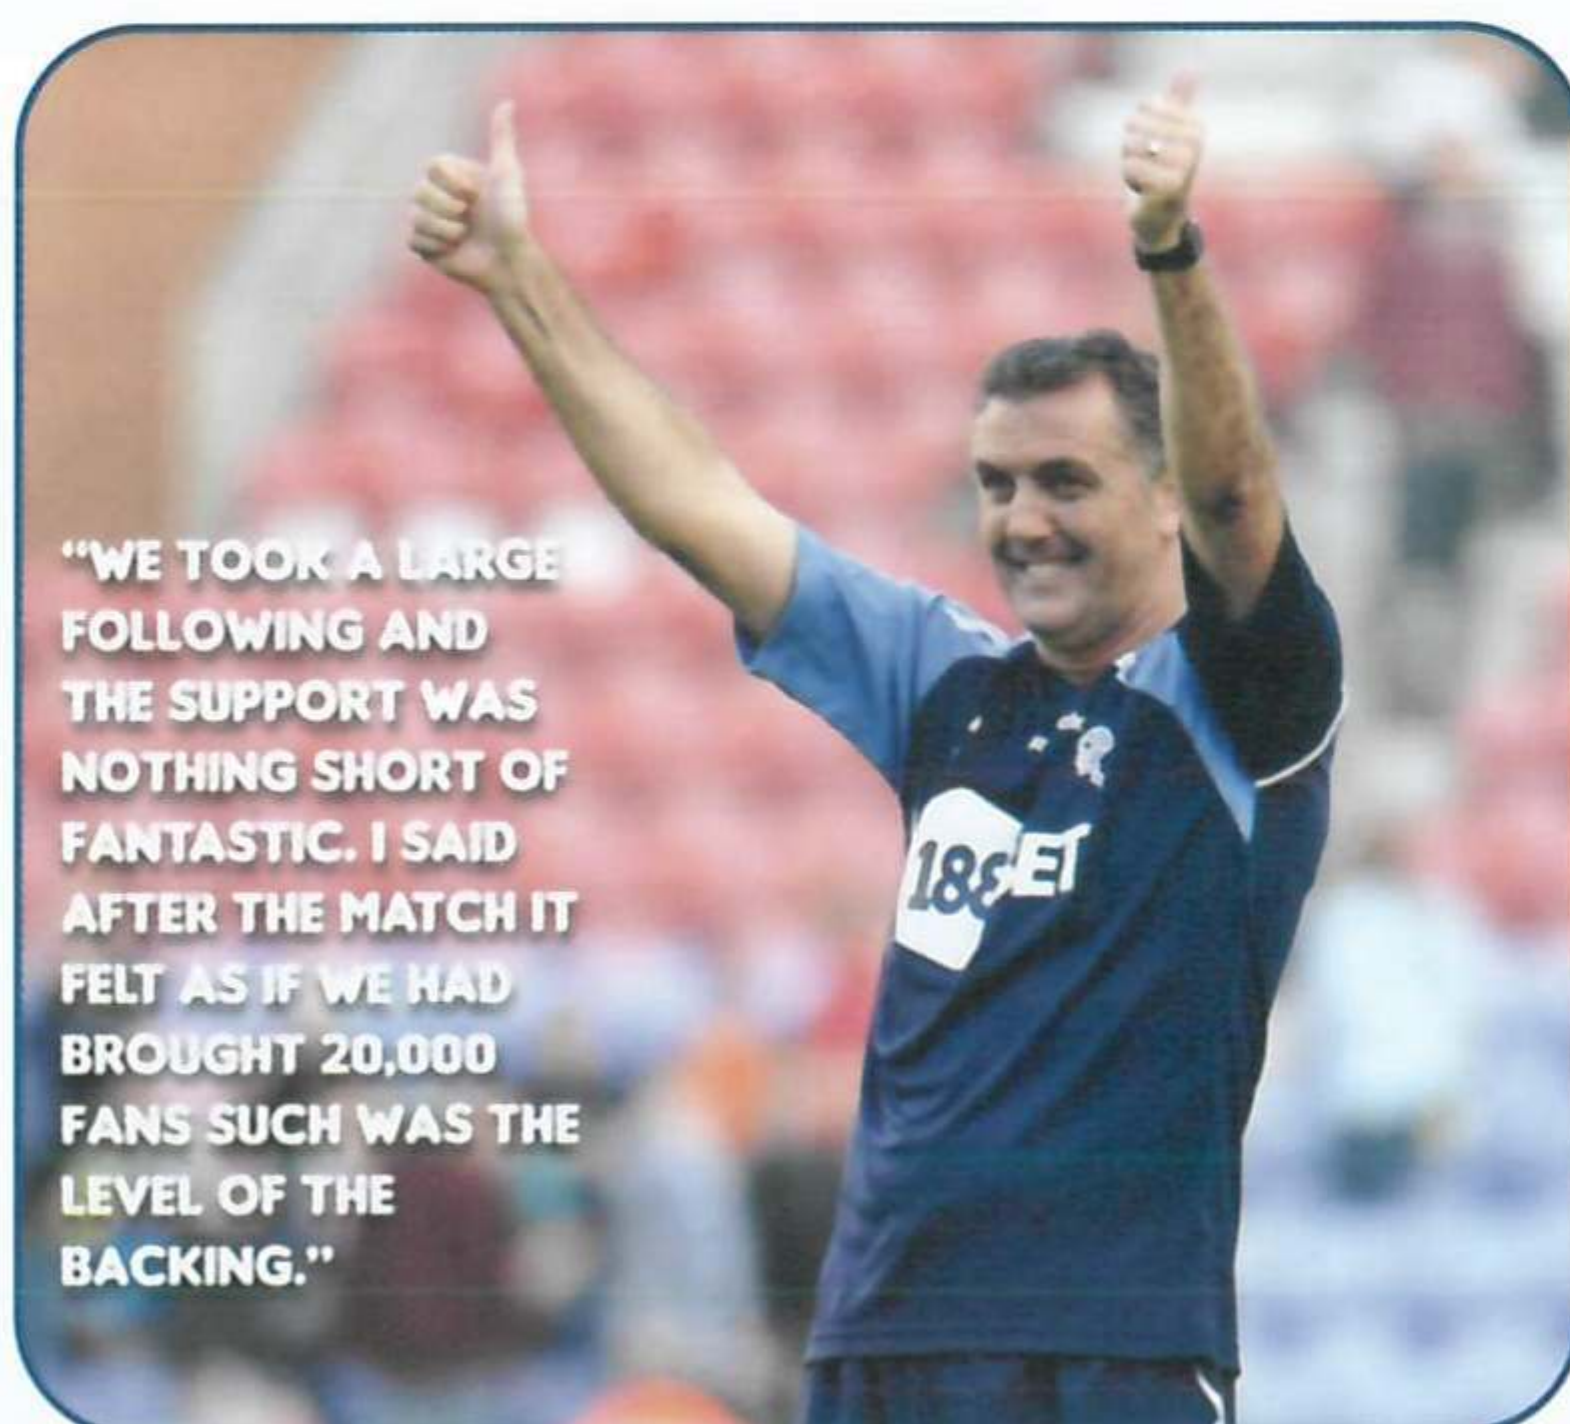

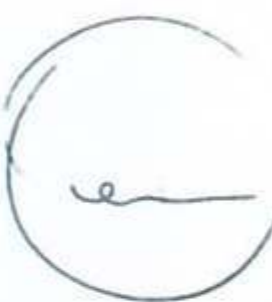

The victory at Wigan showed we have the mental strength and toughness to compete at the elite level. We are aware of the quality that Sunderland possess but we will be going all out to win the game and be the best that we can be.

I'd also like to make everyone aware that today's match is dedicated to one of the game's most established campaigns, Kick it Out's One Game, One Community week of action.

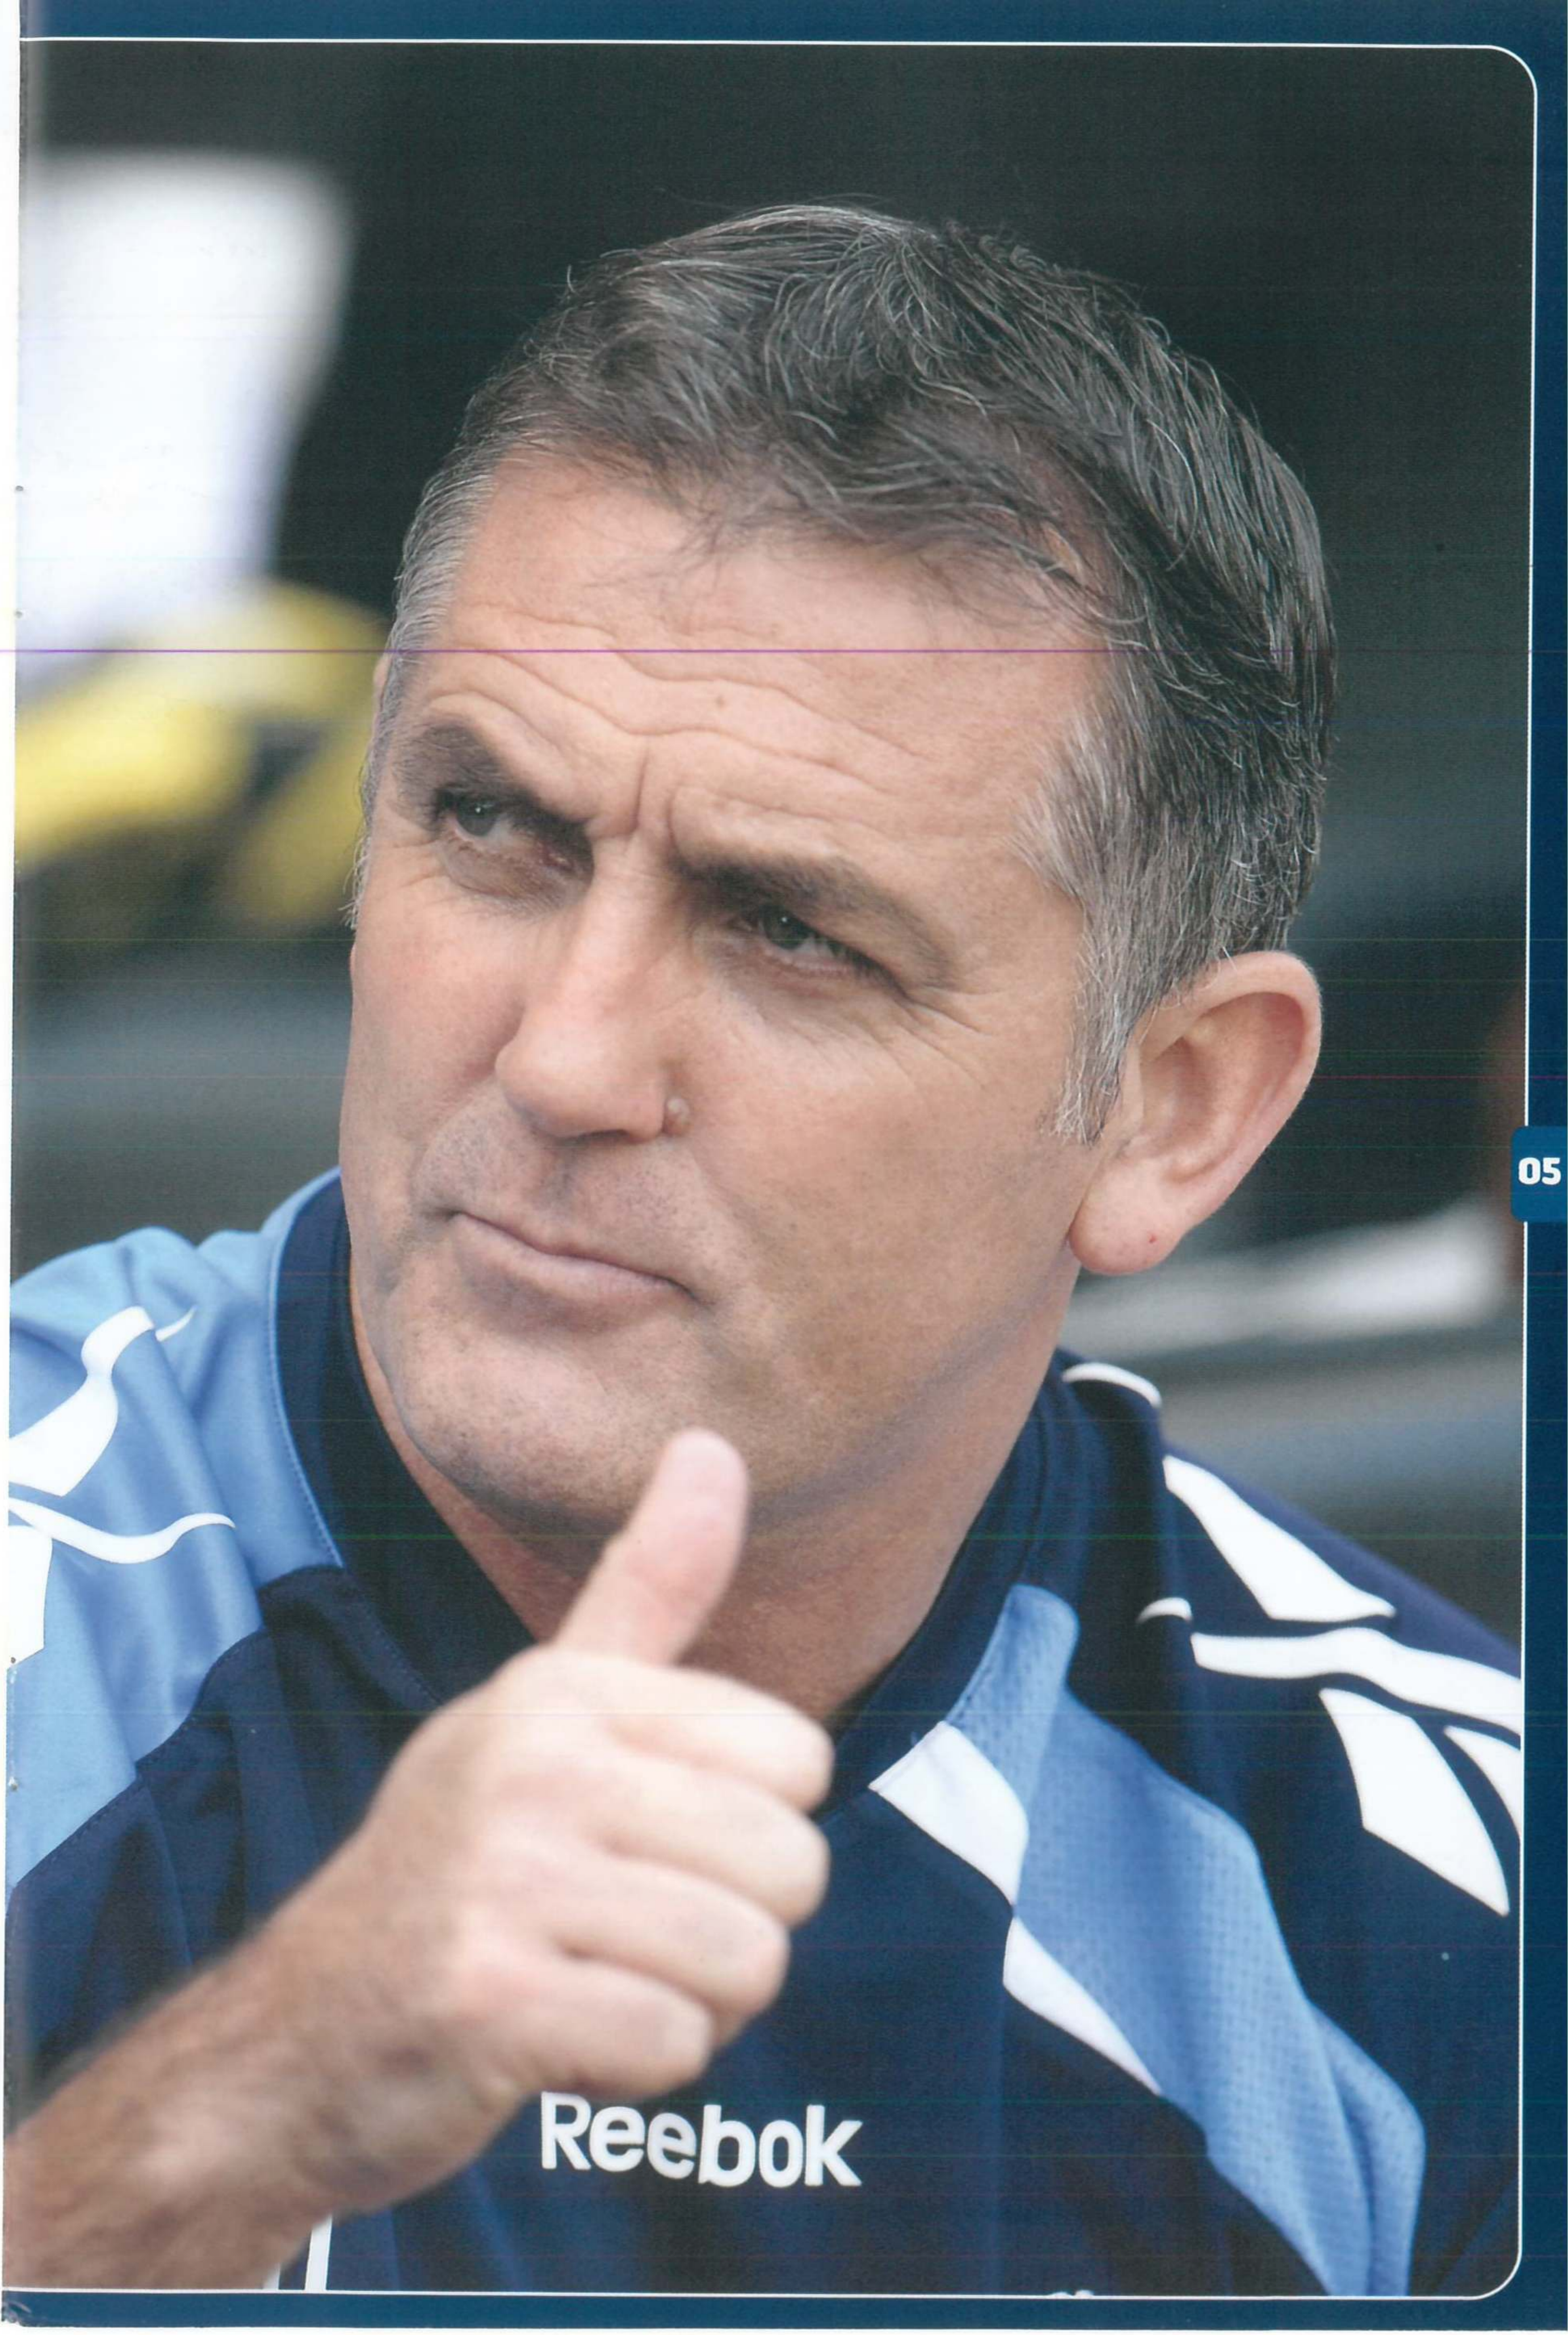

Once again, the club is proud to be supporting the initiative and I am sure that you will join me in acknowledging the great strides made in eradicating discrimination in all its forms and at all levels of the game in recent years.

Many football fans, together with people who work within the game, will recognise the Kick It Out logo and its heightened presence every October. However, the campaign works all year round on a range of initiatives aimed at fostering better relations between clubs and local communities, as well as celebrating the diversity that makes football in this country so special.

So enjoy today's game and, as always, raise the roof.

"WE TOOK A LARGE FOLLOWING AND THE SUPPORT WAS NOTHING SHORT OF FANTASTIC. I SAID AFTER THE MATCH IT FELT AS IF WE HAD BROUGHT 20,000 FANS SUCH WAS THE LEVEL OF THE BACKING."

THE CHAIRMAN

PHIL GARTSIDE

Good afternoon and welcome back to the Reebok, and I'd also like to extend those greetings to everyone connected with Sunderland, including all directors from the Stadium of Light.

It is always good to return to a home game after an away win, more so when it is a derby victory. Our result against Wigan was well-merited and it was pleasing to sit in the directors' box at the DW Stadium and see so many Bolton fans in the away end. We had a great following last weekend and your support and backing this season has been really appreciated by the manager and the players.

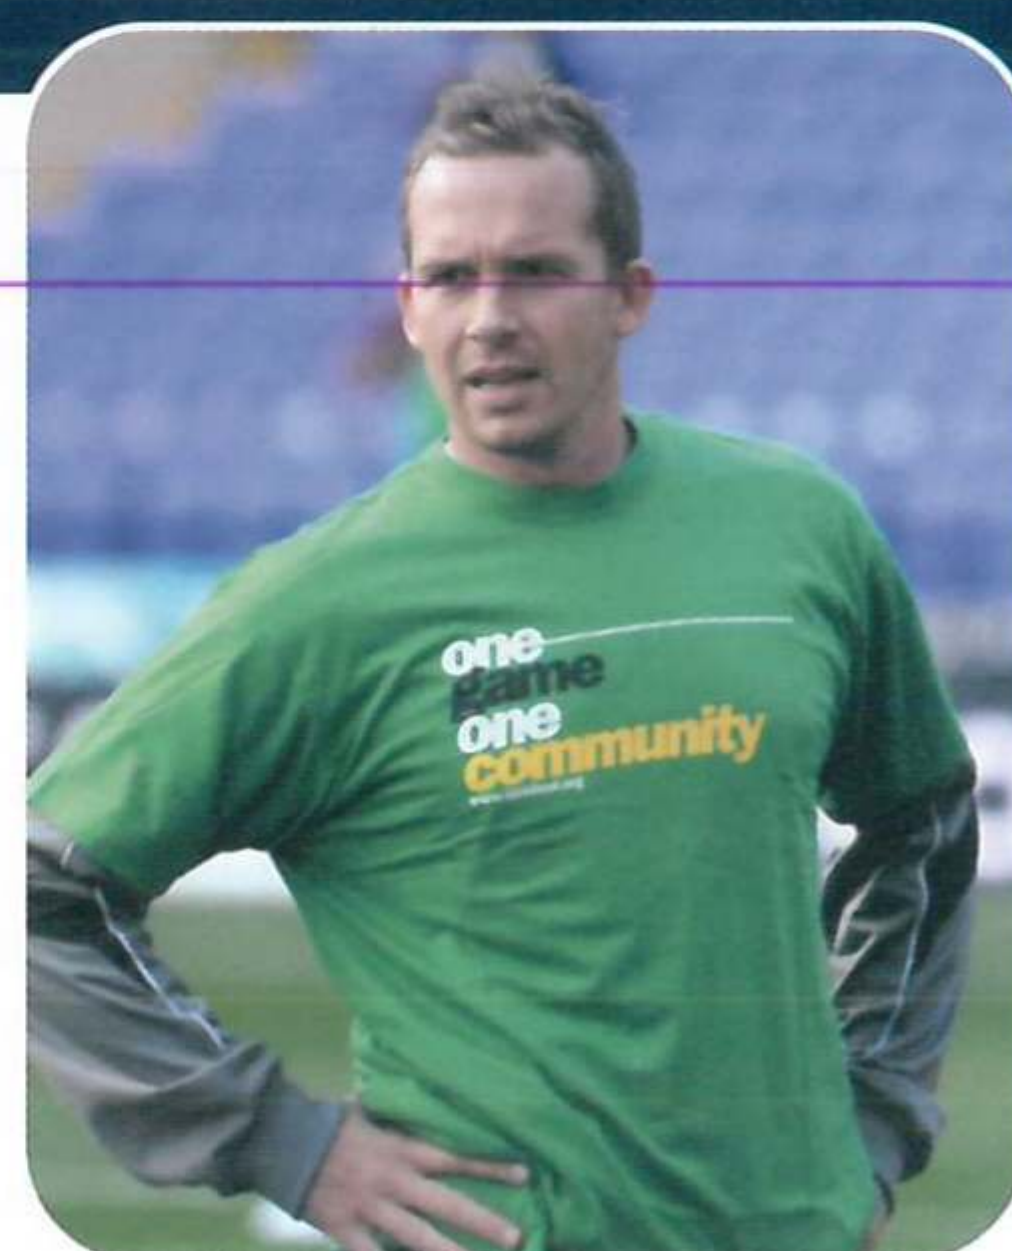

Supporters who attended the game at Wigan are eligible for free travel to Swansea for our fixture at the Liberty Stadium next weekend. Again, I look forward to seeing as many of you as possible for our first-ever Premier League game in Wales, because our fans are a vitally important part of our football club and this offer was a further demonstration of our ongoing commitment to you and to show our appreciation for the role that you play, both home and away.

Before we head down to Swansea there is the Carling Cup tie at Arsenal in midweek. Owen has always made known his love for cup competitions, and having won at Aston Villa in the previous round, we all look forward to our second trip to Emirates Stadium this season.

Today we play host to Sunderland and we will be looking to build on our result at Wigan. The atmosphere last week was fantastic and hopefully we can get the Reebok rocking today.

Week in week out, you get to cheer on your side against some of the best players in the world and that is and always will be a great strength of the Premier League.

As many of you might be aware, today we will be registering a unified message of support with players donning the One Game, One Community t-shirts ahead of kick-off, while staff members throughout the club will be wearing pin badges. And over the coming weeks, schools, libraries and community and grass roots football clubs up and down the country will be following suit.

CELEBRATIONS AT THE DW STADIUM LAST WEEKEND

So let's make time today to acknowledge our collective role in making the game a more tolerant and friendly environment and ensure we maintain this next generation of supporters coming through. Let us unite to promote the importance of football for all under the banner One Game One Community.

Thanks for coming along today and showing your support.

Enjoy the game,

Phil

THE CAPTAIN

KEVIN DAVIES

Good afternoon and welcome to everyone to today's Premier League meeting against Sunderland.

It was nice to get back to winning ways last weekend at Wigan. We all knew that we'd had a difficult set of fixtures and so it was a good feeling last Saturday evening, knowing that we had the three points in the bag.

Naturally, a few disappointing results can have a bit of a reaction on the lads but even in that time we always felt confident. We worked extremely hard during the international break and the manager and all the staff had kept everyone bright and in good spirits, so going into the game at the DW Stadium I was feeling positive that we would get a result.

We had four players back available for the game after they had missed out in recent weeks for a variety of reasons, so in the days leading up to the game no one in the squad felt that their place in the team was guaranteed. There is plenty of competition right throughout the team and at present there are still four or five key players on the sidelines with long-term injuries waiting to come back into the reckoning. We know that we have the players and the squad to move up the table and that is what we have got to do.

One particular positive to come out of last week was that three of the players who joined in the summer got their first Premier League goals for the club. As a striker, I was pleased for David because I know what it is like when you move to a new club and how you want to get your tally up and running. He has looked very sharp in training and brings a lot to the team, he has the pace up front and all the lads have been very impressed with him. But we also have Ivan, with three goals to his name this season, waiting to get back into the team. Everybody is fighting to get into the side and you can see that on the training ground in the build-up to matches.

All in all, it's safe to say that against Wigan we looked more like ourselves. At 2-1, the players were throwing bodies in front of the ball and making tough tackles. Our stats were the highest of the season in terms of work-rate and fitness levels - that's the Bolton of old and we need to keep working for each other to pick more points up. One result can kick-start a run of form and so we have to use it as platform.

Sunderland travel here today under a bit of pressure - they have spent money and are a big club. I watched them at Arsenal last Sunday and they played well, keeping themselves in the game for long periods. So we are aware that we need to put in a strong performance today if we want to get our first three points of the season at the Reebok. We want to repay our fans because they have stuck with us in the opening couple of months of the season. Everyone travelled to Wigan last week in their masses and we thank you for that.

After today we temporarily turn our attention to the Carling Cup when we face Arsenal next week. We were down at the Emirates Stadium just a few weeks ago and we were in the game throughout the first half, up until conceding a goal just after the restart. Arsenal seem to make quite a few changes for this competition, so we will see how today goes and what team the gaffer picks for Tuesday. One thing is for sure, we will be going down there looking to get into quarter-finals and continue our cup form shown throughout 2011.

Thanks for coming along to back the lads today and enjoy the game,

MATCH REPORT

Owen Coyle's side turned in an impressive showing against near neighbours Wigan Athletic, picking up a deserved three points in what was a fiercely contested affair at the DW Stadium.

Nearly 4,000 travelling Wanderers fans saw their side get off to the perfect start when a combination of Nigel Reo-Coker and Gary Caldwell diverted the ball into the Wigan net, before a thunderbolt from Mohamed Diame levelled the scores.

But the Whites weren't deterred, and hit back on the stroke of half-time when David Ngog scored his first goal in a Bolton shirt.

Kevin Davies was then denied from the spot by former Wanderer Ali Al-Habsi, before in stoppage time Chris Eagles capped an all-round pleasing performance with a third goal that saw the Whites leap off the foot of the Premier League table.

THE GAFFER

"I thought we were terrific from the first whistle to the last. We scored three goals and, if the truth be told, we could have had five or six.

"It was never going to be easy - Wigan have a good squad and players like Di Santo, Rodallega and Moses have real quality. We had to make sure we played to our maximum and we did that.

"I've said to the players that we have to continue to give those big performances to move ourselves up the league."

MAN OF THE MATCH

CHRIS EAGLES

The number seven had arguably his best game for Wanderers since joining from Burnley in the summer. He provided a pin-point cross for the opening goal of the match and deservedly got himself on the scoresheet in the dying minutes with an expertly-taken strike.

Kick It Out's One Game, One Community weeks of action is here, with a renewed call from football's equality and inclusion campaign for supporters everywhere to report discrimination heard, or seen in stadia.

"Some of the worst excesses of abuse, where players, fans, even managers and coaches, were abused, harassed and attacked based on colour, race and religion, are now thankfully a thing of the past," says Lord Herman Ouseley, the campaign's Chair. "But pockets of unacceptable behaviour still exist. It's the duty of everyone within the game to flag this up where and when it happens."

LORD HERMAN OUSELEY

Throughout the 18-day period, extended this season by a week to accommodate all home fixtures, professional clubs will be making their contribution by holding match day activities at their dedicated One Game, One Community day of action. At grass roots and amateur level, a number of thought leadership seminars, football tournaments and fan and community led activity will take place.

Notable link ups include those with the Black and Asian Coaches Association (BACA), the Gay Football Supporters Network (GFSN) and the Muslim Women's Sport Foundation (MWSF) in a continued attempt to engage with and provide support to as many communities and groups as possible. One marquee event will see former World Champion boxer, Barry McGuigan, join Kick It Out for its 'Faith in Football' conference at Birmingham City's St Andrews Stadium on 27 October.

And, with the dust settled but ramifications still being felt from the August riots, a number of fixtures having fallen victim to the troubles, the weeks of action is a period where a real opportunity to stitch a sense of community back into the game lies.

The final word goes to Ouseley: "It's under the banner One Game, One Community which we tackle bigotry, intolerance and anti-social behaviour and its presence in our game. If something or someone is damaging your experience of football, share it with the appropriate governing body, club or contact Kick It Out where details will be taken, and acted upon."

In Memoriam

Ronald Denis Chell

29th May 1954 - 19th September 2011

Ron was a great friend of Bolton Wanderers through his work with and support for the International Soccer School.

Ron passed away after a courageous four month battle with pancreatic cancer on 19th September 2011, at his home in Fremont, California.

Ron was born in Uttoxeter, and still has family here in England.

After moving to California 11 years ago and marrying Patricia, Ron soon became a beloved soccer goalkeeper coach. He coached for the Southern Alameda County Youth Soccer League at the University of Notre Dame De Namur, Belmont, California amongst many others places.

We remember his wife Patricia and family at this time of loss.

MANY HAPPY RETURNS, ROY

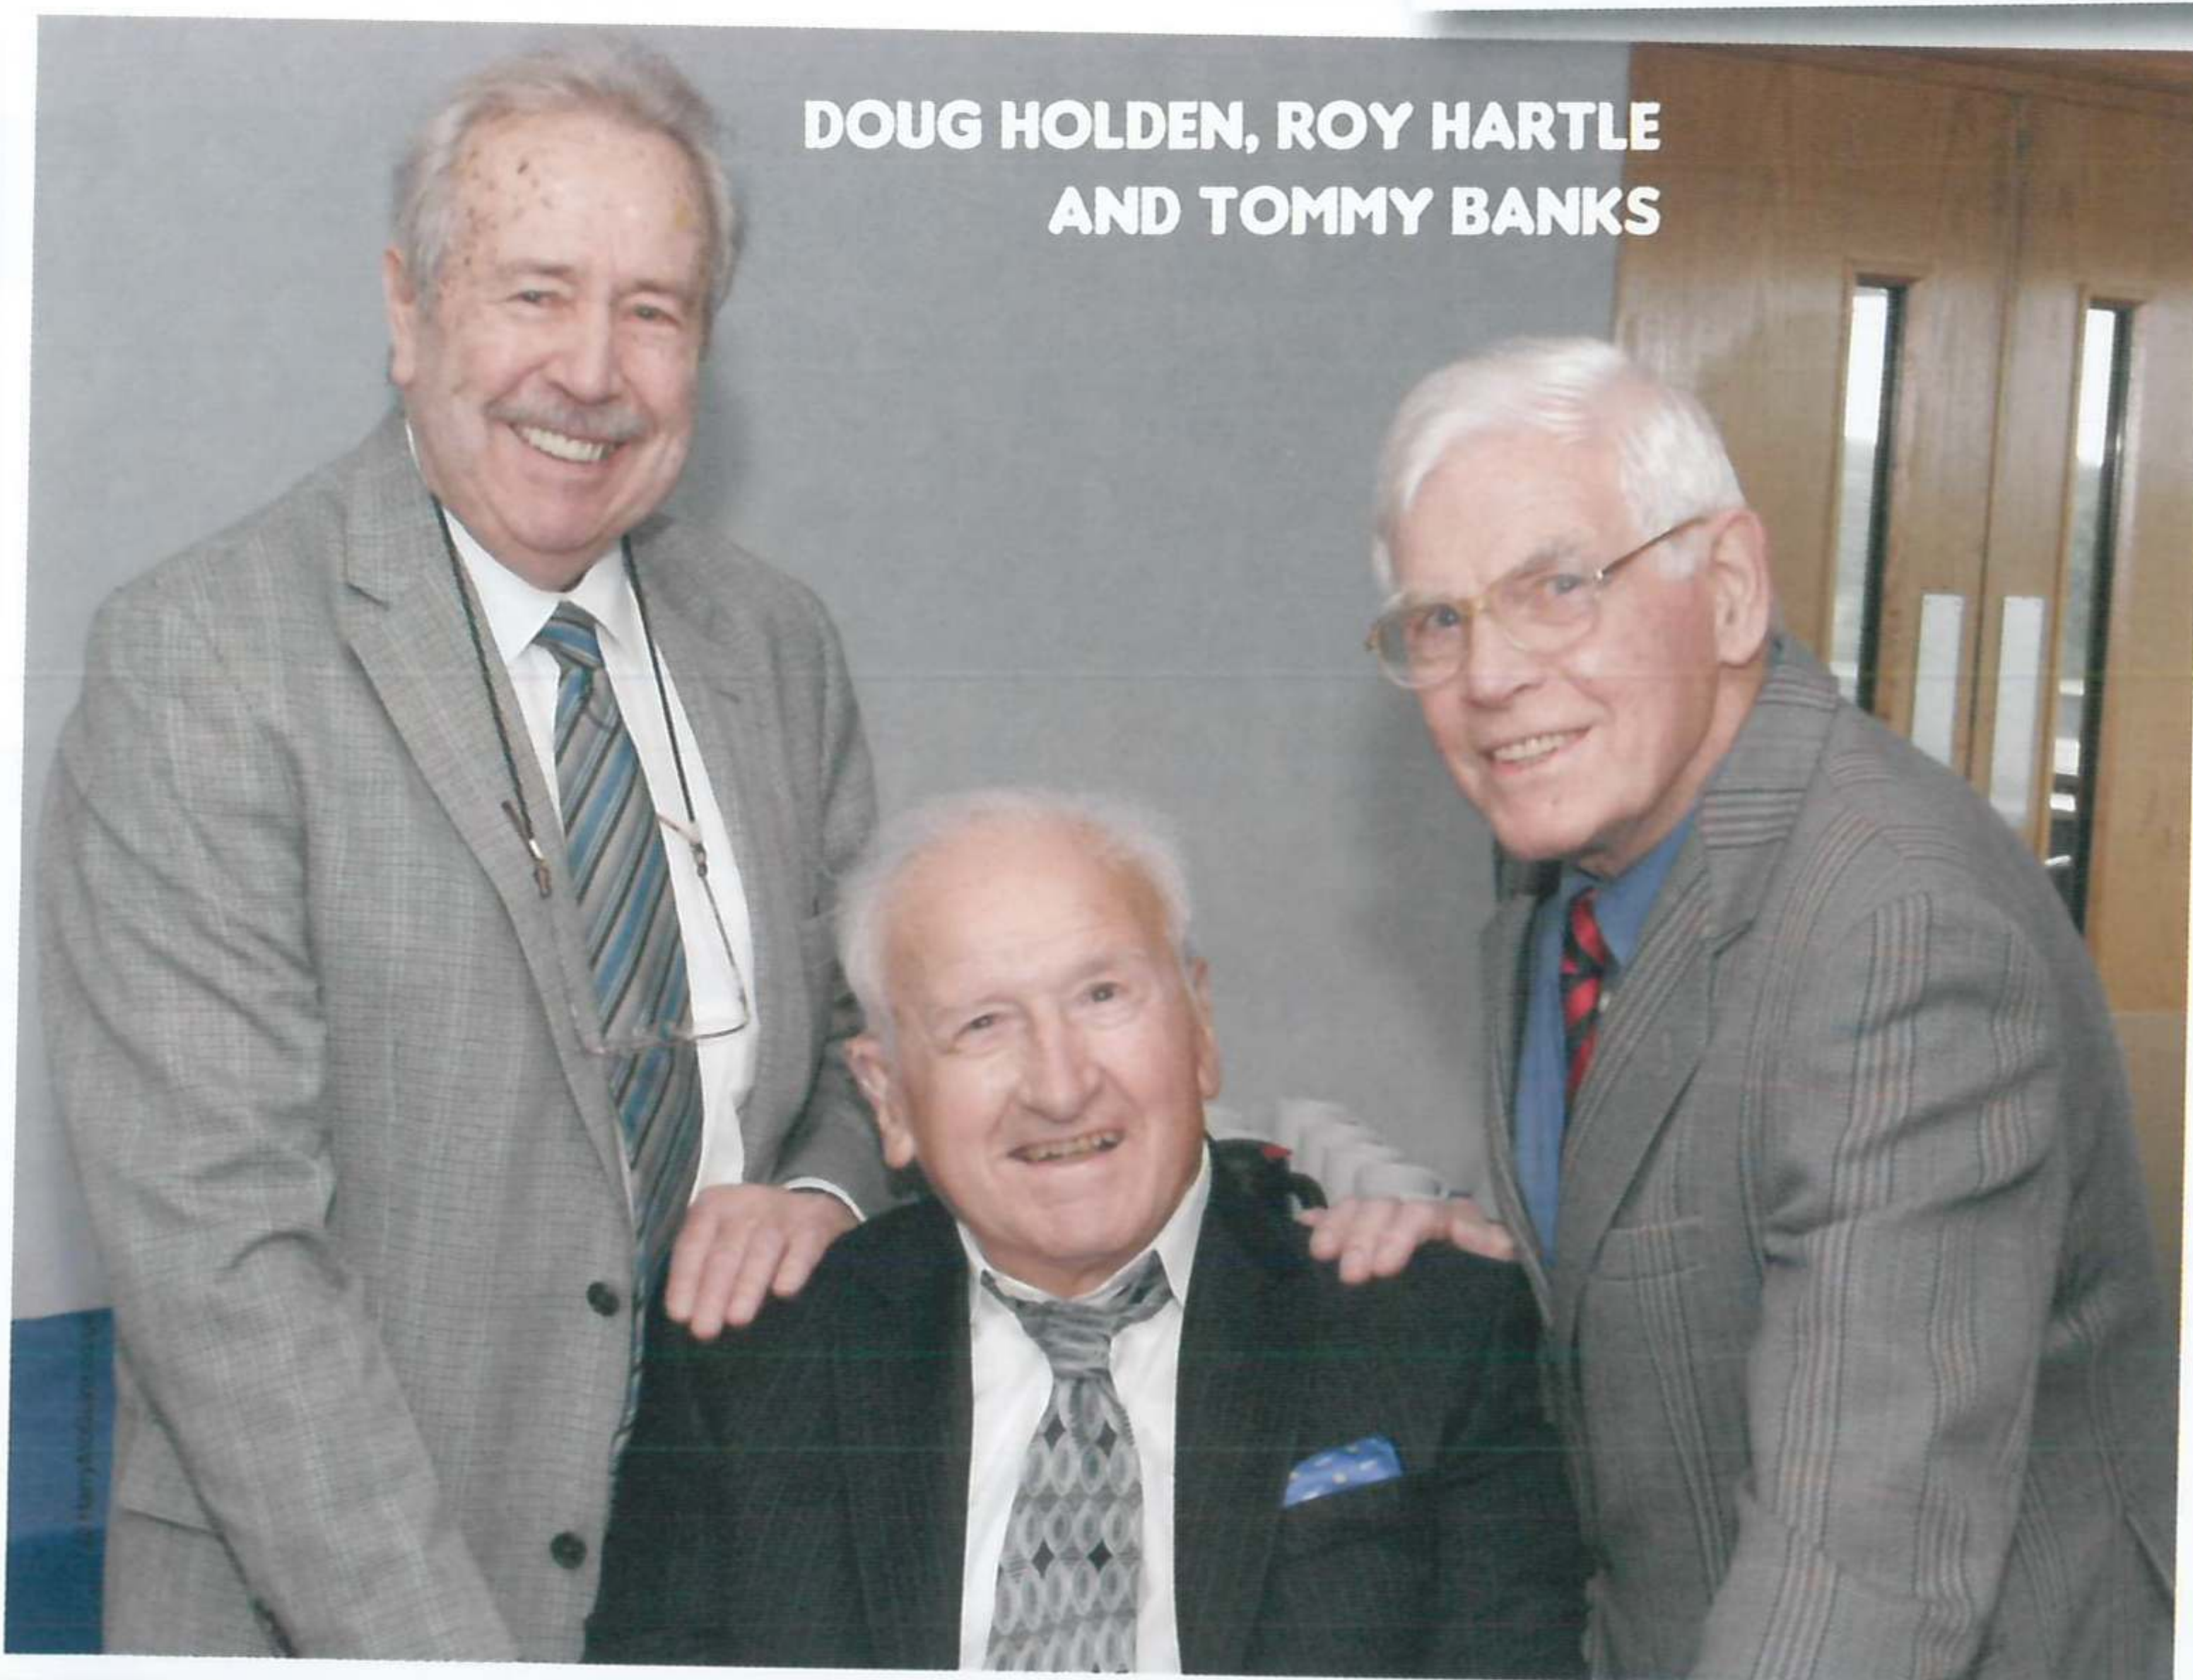

Club legend Roy Hartle celebrated his 80th birthday just a couple of weeks ago, and to mark the occasion many of his former team-mates, friends and family joined him in a specially arranged party at the Reebok Stadium.

The former defender and club captain, born 4 October 1931, made 499 appearances for the Whites between 1952 and 1966, having joined from non-league Bromsgrove Rovers.

Hartle's highlight in his spell with Bolton was helping the club win the FA Cup in 1958, where they beat Manchester United 2-0. And he is pictured below alongside two of his team-mates from that golden era, Doug Holden and Tommy Banks.

Hartle, a member of the club's Hall of Fame, has a suite named after him in the West Stand at the Reebok Stadium and is regular visitor on a home matchday, where he watches the latest generation of Wanderers players in action.

Hartle is also president of the club's Former Players Association.

CHUNG-YONG MAKING HEALTHY PROGRESS

Chung-Yong Lee says that he is making healthy progress as he bids to return to fitness from a broken leg.

The winger, who sustained the injury during a pre-season friendly against Newport County, has spent the previous month in Seoul, working with the South Korea national team medical staff.

And after jetting back into England last week, the 23-year-old explained that he will be stepping up his rehab with the Wanderers backroom team in the forthcoming months.

He said: "The leg is getting better - I've forgotten about the tackle and I'm looking forward. Three weeks ago I threw the crutches away and I can now walk again without them.

"In the four weeks back home I did lots of training in the gym. I was working for about seven or eight hours a day and it has all been very good for me.

"In the mornings I was working on the upper body and then having treatment on my leg. In the afternoons, it was weight training on my leg and exercises such as the bike and running in the anti-gravity treadmill, and then treatment again. Sometimes I spoke to the sports psychologist to discuss my injury and lifestyle.

"It was good to do that stage of my rehab in Korea. After a hard day it can be tiring and it helped to be around my family and friends and eating Korean food. I enjoyed being back home and it was all good for my leg.

"Now I'm back in Bolton, I'm looking forward to more hard training because after the operation I couldn't do anything for a long period of time. My leg is feeling better but I need to start doing more cardiovascular training which will help with my breathing.

"I missed everyone and my team-mates whilst I was away, but now I'm back I will see them all the time because most weeks I will be in from Monday to Friday."

HOME & AWAY

WITH

MARK DAVIES

By Daniel Houlker

First club played for?

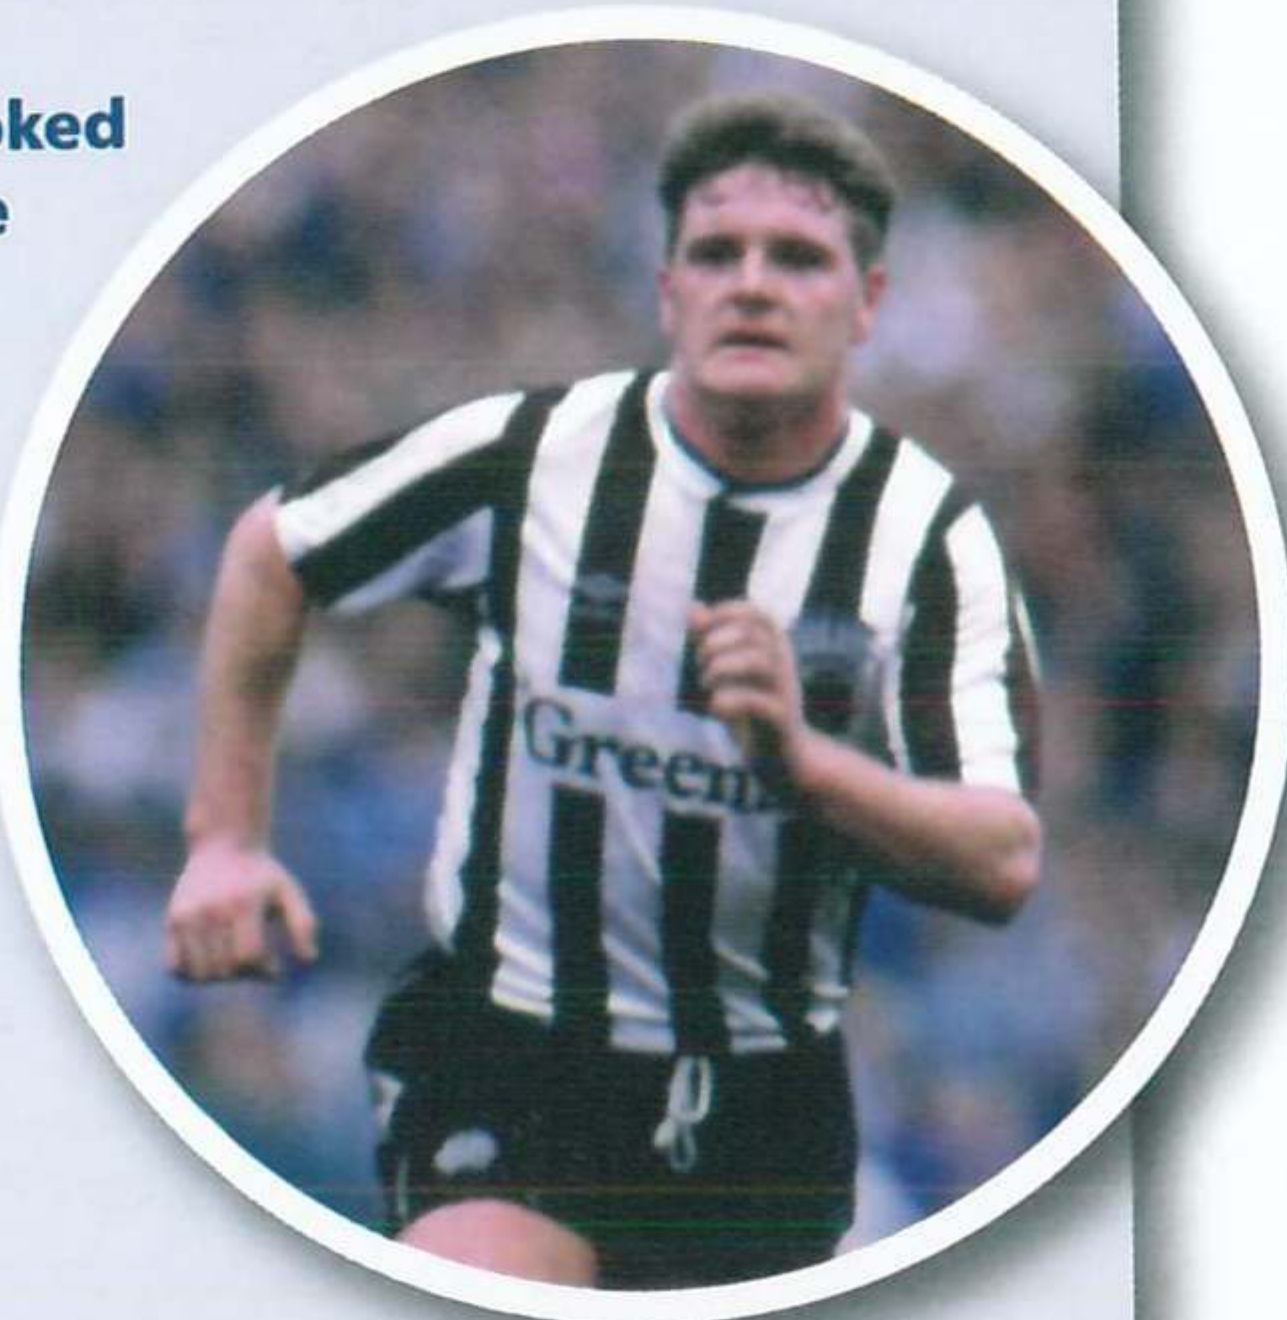

It was a local side called Lane Head Strollers based in Walsall.

Team supported growing up?

I used to follow a few, but the main one was Wolves. A lot of my family support them and growing up in that area had a big influence on me.

Player you looked up to as a role model?

Paul Gascoigne. He plays in the same position as myself and was a joy to watch. He had all the attributes that made him stand out from other players.

Best goal ever scored?

I'd probably say the best goal I've ever scored was in the FA Youth Cup for Wolves at Molineux. I think it was against Southampton. I remember going past a couple of players, before shooting into the top corner from about 40 yards out! I don't I've ever kicked a ball that far since! It seems like absolutely ages ago looking back.

Make and model of boots?

I wear adidas adiPURE boots at the moment. They're white with a black and sky blue trim.

Who or what inspired you to play football?

I don't know really, it's a good question. I just used to play football with my mates at school and with my local team and it went from there really. I began to enjoy it more and more, and eventually progressed from there.

Did you have any notable room-mates at any of your previous clubs?

Nope, not really. Of the clubs I've been at we've had separate rooms which I suppose is a bit of a luxury.

If you could be any other player in the world, past or present, who would you be?

That's another good question. I'd probably have to go for David Beckham. He's achieved so much, winning trophies in different countries and is renowned worldwide as arguably one of England's greatest ever footballers. I'd also have to put Paul Scholes in there too, because he was unbelievably consistent for so many years.

Which players in the current squad do you most admire and why?

There are a few actually. The skipper (Kevin Davies) is a great professional both on and off the pitch. I also look up to Jussi Jaaskelainen and Ricardo Gardner who have both been great servants for this club.

Who is your best friend in football?

I still get on with a lot of my old team-mates from Wolves. Lee Naylor, who used to play for Wolves and is now with Cardiff, is a good friend of mine. We used to practically live on the same estate! Since I've moved to Bolton I've become good mates with Blakey (Robbie Blake).

What do you plan on doing after your career as a player ends?

I've not really thought about it to be honest. Maybe I'd go into coaching or something along those lines. It's a long way off yet, so I can afford to concentrate on what's going on now.

What advice would you give to upcoming, aspiring footballers?

I'd tell them to never give up. Always work hard and fight for your dream, because if you've got that belief, things will work out for you.

Who is the toughest opponent you've ever come up against?

Tough one that, but I think Scott Parker is probably up there. He covers so much ground and I remember playing against him once, and every time I received the ball you could see him out of the corner of your eye closing you down.

Do you have any pre-match rituals?

In the dressing room before a game I like to play a quick game of two-touch keepy-up with the gaffer. It just helps give you a feel for the ball and to be honest, I usually beat him!

What was the first car you owned, and what do you currently drive?

That would be a black Mini Cooper. I now drive a white Audi Q7.

What was the last music album you bought?

It was one of Beyonce's. I don't update my iPod regularly, but I put a couple of her albums on it recently.

What TV shows do you Sky+?

I'm really into a programme called Entourage at the moment. It's comedy-drama series and is absolutely class.

What is your favourite meal?

Fish and chips.

What aftershave do you wear?

It's one called Marc Jacobs.

Do you have a nickname?

Yes, Sparky. I don't even know why it came about. I remember being at school and for some reason it started from there. It has stuck with me ever since.

If you hadn't become a professional footballer, what would you have done?

I don't know really, probably some kind of coaching with kids.

Do you have a middle name?

Yes I do, Nicholas. I'm not too fond of it.

Do you have any fears?

I've never been too keen on bungee jumping. Every time I see someone do one I feel a little queasy and my friends once tried to get me on one.

Do you have any tattoos?

I've got absolutely loads. I've got them all over both of my arms and a few on my chest. Each arm took about seven or eight hours.

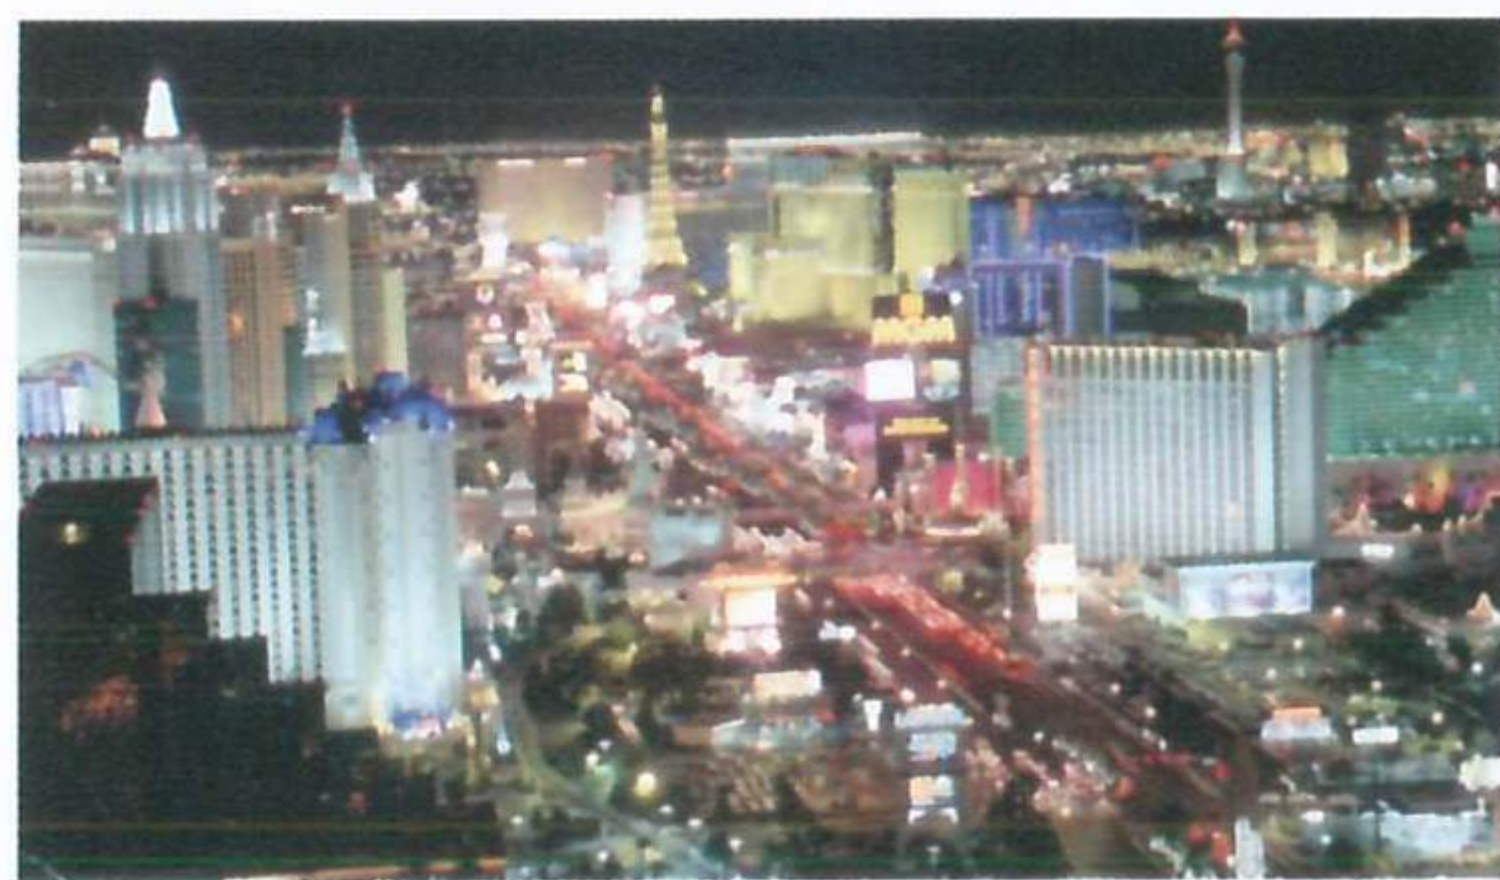

Where is the best place to spend a Saturday night?

I'd have to say relaxing with a few mates having picked up three points in the afternoon, maybe in a nice restaurant or at home on the sofa.

What would you class as your favourite holiday destination?

It quite simply has to be Las Vegas.

What was the last book you read?

That was Paul Gascoigne's autobiography. I'm about halfway through it at the moment.

What was the last film you saw?

It was The Inbetweeners Movie. I had to go see it as I loved the television series.

Where are you most likely to be found on your day off?

Probably just at home chilling and playing the Xbox online with my mates from back in Wolverhampton.

Are you good at any other sports?

I'm not too bad. I enjoy a game of badminton now and again and used to play it at school. More recently I've taken up golf, but I struggle with my swing.

Who is your hero?

My dad. He is always there for me to give crucial advice and I have learnt so much from him.

It's a cold March evening up in Wearside, it's 1999 and the business end of the season is rapidly approaching. Wanderers have made the long trip up to the North East to face a side that is cruising to the Division One title, while Colin Todd's team themselves are still in with a shout of returning back to the Premier League at the first time of asking.

But after a 3-1 defeat against Sunderland at the Stadium of Light, Bolton's hopes of finishing in the top six and qualifying for a play-off position are starting to look in jeopardy. Having picked up just one win in their last seven league matches, Todd decides it's time to call for more experience.

It's Jussi Jaaskelainen's first full season in English football and after making 40 appearances during the first seven months of the campaign, the Bolton boss decides the time is right to take the Finnish shot-stopper out of the limelight. Steve Banks, a recent £60,000 capture from Blackpool, is the man selected to guard the goal for the next game against Oxford and for the rest of the campaign.

In many respects it's a decision that is justified as Wanderers rediscover their early season form and after an upturn in fortunes, come within just one game of promotion before losing 2-0 in the play-off final against Watford.

Naturally there is disappointment for Jaaskelainen, who after performing so admirably for long periods of the season, doesn't even make the substitutes' bench for the showpiece game at Wembley Stadium.

However, that decision by Todd proved very significant, for it made Jaaskelainen understand what it takes to succeed in England and that consistency really is the key to a prolonged career at the very top level.

And 12 years later, now with 515 Wanderers appearances to his name, Jaaskelainen is still going strong.

"I remember it very clearly," explained Jaaskelainen, when he sat down to speak to the matchday programme earlier in the week.

"I was a young goalkeeper, learning things every day and game by game. I had just moved to England the year before having played my entire career previously in my homeland.

"In Finland we only played 26 games a season so I wasn't used to it all. I had moved to Bolton and, after breaking into the team, I was playing game after game, sometimes up to three times in a week.

"I started to find it mentally tiring when preparing for matches so regularly. However, it gave me an opportunity to understand what it takes to succeed in England. I learnt a lot of things that season, the main thing being that I had to concentrate on not doing anything extra special but keeping a consistently high level of performance.

"The next time I got a chance to play in the first team was the following season. Keith Branagan hurt his leg in a game with Huddersfield and I came off the bench to play.

"I had played the night before in the reserves against Aston Villa. I was actually supposed to be the third choice goalkeeper for that game but Steve Banks needed to go in for surgery on a hernia and I was promoted to a substitute.

"From there I felt I took my chance. I had learned from the things that happened in the past and luckily I have more or less played ever since."

Indeed, Jaaskelainen has been the first choice goalkeeper at the Reebok Stadium for well over a decade. He is now sixth in the all-time appearance list and is well on course to move into the top three by the end of the season, where Roy Greaves and Eddie Hopkinson would stand ahead of him on 575 and 578 games respectively.

During the 14 years since he made the move from VPS Vaasa, the 36-year-old says the club has come on leaps and bounds, not just on the field but off it.

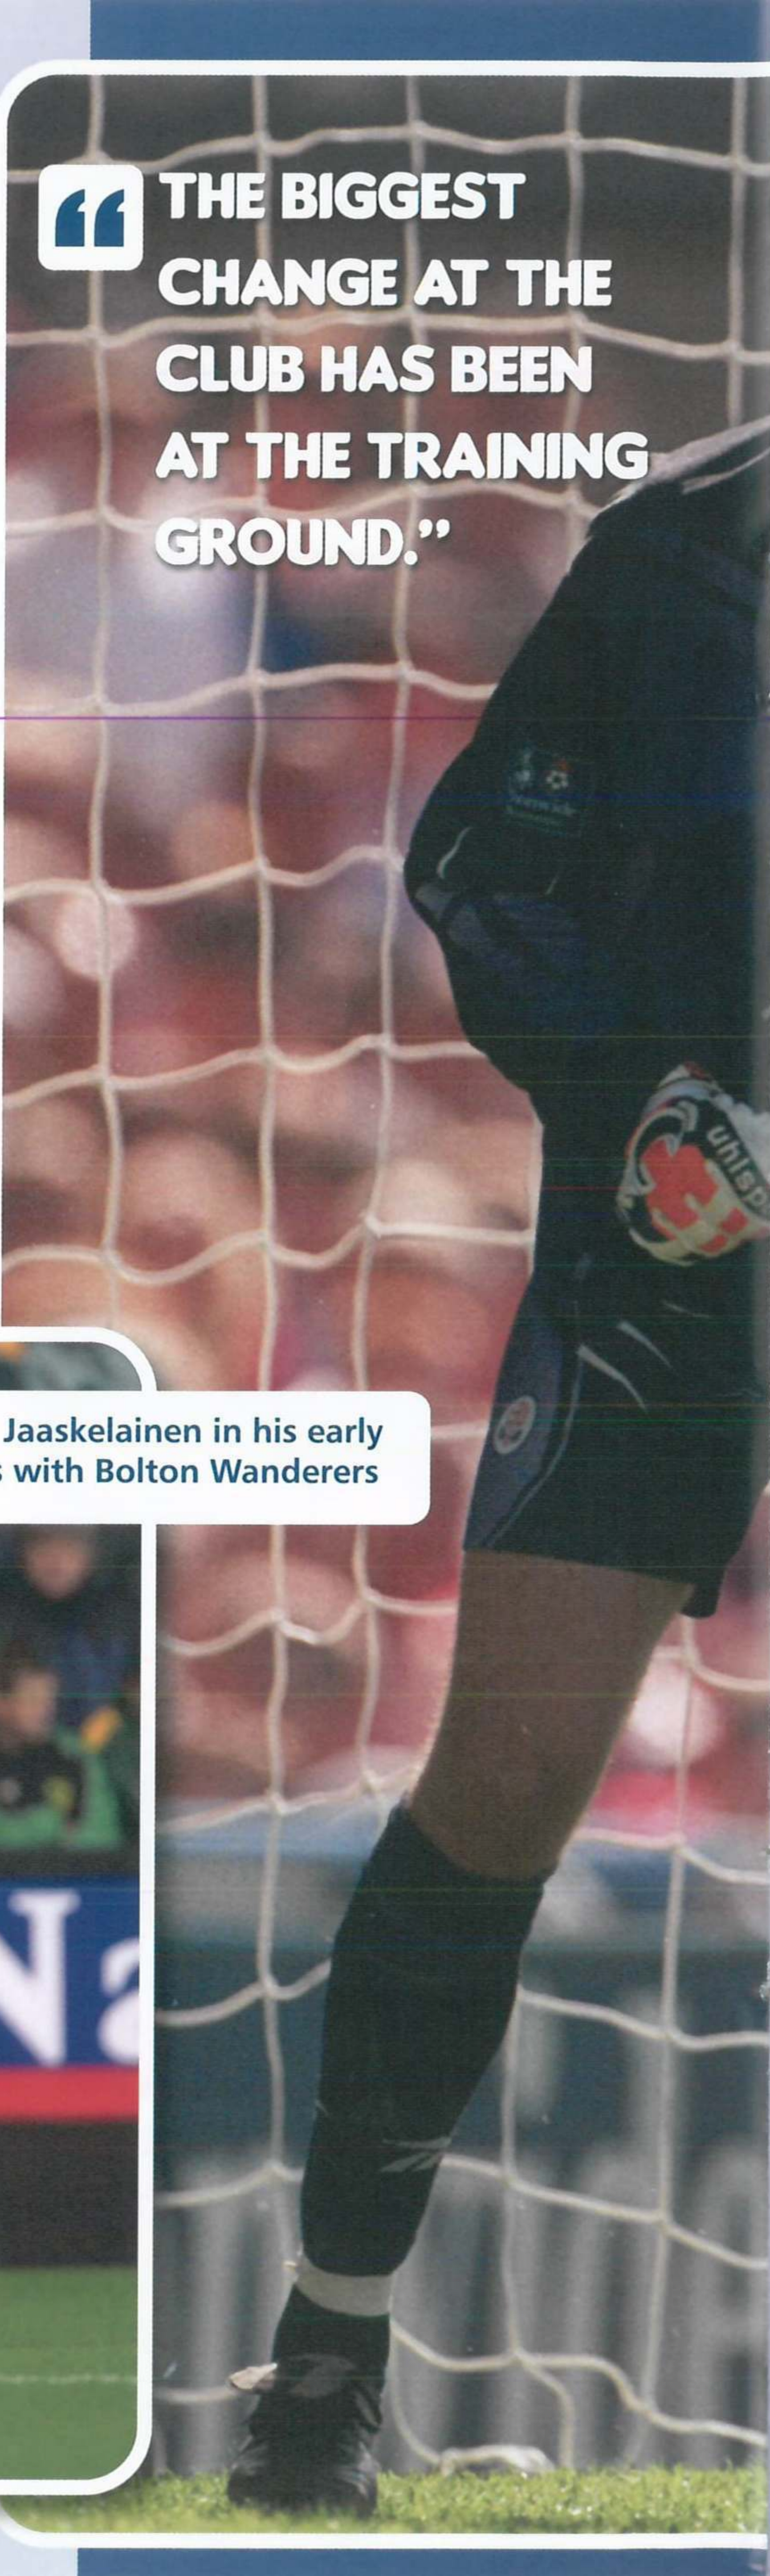

"The biggest change at the club has been at the training ground", he said. "When I first joined there was the new stadium, but there have been massive improvements at Euxton in the time since.

THE BIGGEST CHANGE AT THE CLUB HAS BEEN AT THE TRAINING GROUND."

Jussi Jaaskelainen in his early years with Bolton Wanderers

"We have everything now to prepare for a game. There are the water pools, a gymnasium and steam and treatment rooms, but when I first joined it was more like a converted bowling club with portakabins. There were three of them – one was a kit office and the others were changing rooms. The club has come a long way.

"I've played with hundreds of players and we've had some real characters at the club; players such as Stig Tofting, Kevin Nolan and Gudni Bergsson are ones that I always remember. It's funny in a way because although people have come and gone, the team spirit has always been the same. From day one, everyone has always worked for each other, it's just that there have been different players here."

When Jaaskelainen first joined the Whites, he was adding to a squad already well-stocked with goalkeepers.

Keith Branagan was number one and Gavin Ward and Matt Glennon provided the back-up. And in the time since, the likes of Ian Walker, Kevin Poole, Ali Al-Habsi, Matt Clarke are amongst those who have joined and left the club.

At present, Adam Bogdan and Rob Lainton are Jaaskelainen's understudies, and the big Finn is predicting a bright future for the pair.

He explained: "It's a bit of a different situation now because we have two young lads, whereas in the past the other goalkeepers have been a bit older - obviously Ali spent several years here and moved on to play first-team football.

"Adam has played about ten games in the team and has done well enough consistently to show that he is a very good goalkeeper. He has also played games for Hungary which shows he is heading in the right direction.

"Rob has got a bright future too and maybe he might go out to play a few games on loan sometime in the future. He is only 21 years old and has got plenty of time ahead of him. You can get yourself to certain levels on the training ground but you need matches to learn more about the game.

2!

Rob Lainton, Jussi Jaaskelainen and Adam Bogdan

"It might sound a bit strange, but the best thing for my career was that we got relegated in 1998.

"I had just joined and after getting into the team I was playing in the second tier. All of my mistakes weren't highlighted as they would be in Premier League where you are in everyone's eyes.

"In the Football League, more often than not, you play Saturday-Tuesday-Saturday, so if you had a bad game at the weekend then you could get that performance out of the system straight away."

Jaaskelainen returned to the team last Saturday at Wigan after missing the last home game against Chelsea with a thigh strain. And along with the ten other outfield players, he produced a performance to be pleased with as the Whites returned to winning ways in impressive fashion.

He concluded: "It was a big game for us last weekend and the result will help to lift the mood in the camp. A win like that can make a massive difference and the little margins can affect fortunes.

"I remember several years ago in 2004/05. We had lost six games on the bounce around Christmas time and it was looking like we were going to lose another until Dioufy scored an equaliser against West Brom in the last few minutes.

"A couple of days later we went to Birmingham and won in the last minute with a goal from Kevin Nolan and that started a winning run.

"Things can change quickly in football and after last weekend hopefully we have turned the corner."

GAVIN MCCANN

Gavin McCann has a foot in both camps ahead of today's game against Sunderland, having made over a century of appearances for the Black Cats during his playing career.

Aged just 33, McCann was forced to call time on his playing career earlier this year following a long-standing ankle complaint and has now opted to turn his hand to coaching, overseeing the Wanderers' under-15 side.

His last appearance for the Whites came at the Emirates Stadium in January 2010 when he was forced from the field of play in what was just Owen Coyle's second game in charge.

Numerous operations and comeback attempts followed for the Blackpool-born man, but instead he opted to start a fresh chapter in his footballing journey, venturing into the world of football coaching.

"I've been in charge of the under-15s since the start of this season," McCann explained to the official matchday programme. "I'm usually in Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays, with a game at the weekend. We haven't played many games as of yet, and as a footballer that's what you work towards in training.

"I'm getting to know the lads as each day goes by; what their strengths and weaknesses are and in the areas in which they can improve. Overall I'm really enjoying it.

"I've been working hard to get my coaching qualifications along the way and have recently completed my UEFA B license. I'll be looking to put in for the A license soon and hopefully that will stand me in good stead for the future."

McCann played under numerous high-profile managers during his 16-year long playing career, including the likes of Howard Wilkinson and former Wanderer Peter Reid at Sunderland, Joe Royle, Dave Watson and Howard Kendall at Everton and David O'Leary and Martin O'Neill at Aston Villa.

Though when quizzed about whether his background as a recent professional player at the top level of English football helped him gain a preliminary grounding in coaching, McCann responded: "I've not really had to think about it to be honest. When I was playing, not once did I think to myself, 'when I retire I definitely want to go into coaching'. I wasn't specifically looking at the managers and coaches I worked with and wondering what I would do differently.

"It was only when I realised my injury was bad that I first thought about it. I mentioned it to Jimmy Phillips and he told me to go down to Lostock and have a look around so I could see how it all worked.

"At the back end of last season and I observed some sessions and took time to speak to a number of the coaches. The likes of Nicky Spooner and Neil Pointon were really helpful.

"It's like anything; you get more and more familiar with it as time goes by. I love football, so I don't find it hard to motivate myself which I think is important when you're involved with coaching.

"More often than not it's a case of passing information and my experiences onto the kids, and they really do seem to respond to it. It's a good feeling when you see the youngsters learning from your advice and developing as players as a result."

Prior to his spell at the Reebok, McCann had previously turned out for three other clubs, one of which was today's visitors, Sunderland.

Having signed for the club in 1998 from Everton, McCann made 14 appearances in his first season with the Black Cats, as they romped to the Championship title with a record-breaking 105 points.

The following year, McCann established himself as a regular, making 27 appearances, chipping in with a number of crucial goals, two of which were matchwinners, away at Watford and at home to Portsmouth in the space of a week.

The midfielder's good form continued, and he went on to earn international recognition the following season, turning out for England against Spain.

Reflecting on his time with the Wearside club, McCann said with a smile: "I really enjoyed my time at Sunderland. It was great from the moment I got there, even though I couldn't get in the team initially!

"We were in the Championship then, and I played a few games in the season we got promoted to the Premier League.

"We then had two good finishes in the top half of the league. Now that I look back I think that the chairman should have put his hand in his pocket and bought some players because we were in a really good position to kick on. Unfortunately that never happened and a few players left and things changed. That was the only disappointing thing about it.

"They're just a great club. The people there are good and the way the fans supported us was amazing. All the lads were great and there really was a positive atmosphere in the dressing room."

SUPPORTERS' STORIES

ROY BARKER AND KEITH SEDDON

By Andy Neild

Lionize, lionise
[la na z] verb - to treat
as or make into a celebrity.

It's the perfect word to describe what most Bolton fans of a certain age thought of the club's ultimate hero, the late, great Nat Lofthouse - otherwise known as 'The Lion of Vienna'.

However, one group of devotees decided to take their love of 'Lofty' to a whole new level when they took the word quite literally in 1960.

Nat was one of the special guests at an event to honour another football legend, Sir Tom Finney, when a group of Wanderers fans from Earlestown suddenly made an impromptu presentation of their own.

Lifelong Bolton fan Roy Barker, who was just 14 at the time and played a key role in the surprise, together with his friend Keith Seddon, takes up the story.

"Nat attended a presentation evening at Earlestown Town Hall, which was meant to be in honour of Tom Finney, but we decided to surprise him with a presentation of our own.

"The story goes that my dad, who was a big Wanderers fan, found a statue of a lion in a scrapyard in the Earlestown area.

"At the time Nat was known as 'The Lion of Vienna' so my dad and several of his friends from the Earlestown area, who were also Bolton fans, decided to club together and send it to a jeweller called Fred Mort, where it was mounted and gold-plated.

"Me and my friend Keith Seddon then got the job of presenting it to Nat when he paid a visit to the town hall.

"At the time, I was only 14 and I didn't fully appreciate the significance of it.

"But apparently it became one of Nat's most prized possessions, and people have since told me he was extremely proud of it."

Sadly, that night in 1960 was the only occasion Roy got to meet his childhood hero so he never got the chance to tell the full story behind the iconic statue.

"That's one of my big regrets," said Roy, who is still a Wanderers season ticket holder to this day, together with three further generations of his family.

"I kept meaning to get in touch with Nat and tell him I was one of the lads who made the presentation but, regrettably, I never got round to it."

THE FOOTBALL TALKING POINT

By Andy Neild

EARLIER THIS WEEK RICHARD BEVAN SPOKE ABOUT THE IDEA OF A 'FRANCHISE MODEL' FOR THE BARCLAYS PREMIER LEAGUE, WHICH WOULD EFFECTIVELY SPELL THE END OF PROMOTION AND RELEGATION IN ENGLISH FOOTBALL'S TOP-FLIGHT. WHAT ARE YOUR THOUGHTS?

THE JOURNALIST

I've got to agree with Dave Whelan on this – it's a crazy idea that can never be allowed to happen. You can see the American influence creeping into our game when ideas like this are floated. In essence it's foreign owners wanting to ring fence the money but can you imagine what that would do to the Premier League?

Look at last season and all the drama and excitement of 'Survival Sunday'. If you put a stop to relegation then we'd end up with a load of dead rubbers between teams with nothing to play for. For a lot of fans, staying up is a highlight in itself and all the drama and excitement that goes with it lives long in the memory. If we took that away then the Premier League would become very sterile and predictable. That in turn would have a big impact on gates and I'm sure Sky would start to look at the value of the TV rights if they were left with a load of meaningless games that had nothing riding on them.

DAVID ANDERSON, DAILY MIRROR

THE FAN

The way I see it is it would bring financial stability to a club. However, it just feels wrong to take away the possibility of promotion for those clubs in the Championship. On top of that a lot of games in the Premier League would suddenly become meaningless, which in turn would affect the standard of football. I can see why the idea might be attractive to certain clubs in the Premier League because it would give them the stability to plan for the long term. But ultimately it's just wrong and not what English football is all about. Our game is all about winning and losing, and the fact it really matters if you win or lose.

MARK HOLGATE, BOLTON FAN

THE PUNDIT

As far as I'm concerned it's a total nonsense. It would kill what football is all about. Theoretically, it's possible for a team from level six of the English game – the North West Counties League – to go all the way to the Premier League, and potentially the Champions League, due to the way the current system is structured. To implement this change would kill that dream stone dead for the vast majority of clubs in England.

I heard a whisper recently that a certain Premier League football club owner didn't realise it was possible to get relegated from the top-flight when they made their investment – they wrongly presumed their club was guaranteed games against the likes of Manchester City and Manchester United every season!

If we scrapped promotion and relegation in the Premier League then we'd be denied great stories like Blackpool, who successfully reached the top-flight last season thanks to great coaching, sensible management and careful financial planning, and very nearly stayed up. Unfashionable clubs like Blackpool need to be able to live the dream and that's one of the strengths of the English game.

PETE SMITH, SKY SPORTS

BOLTON WANDERERS AND:

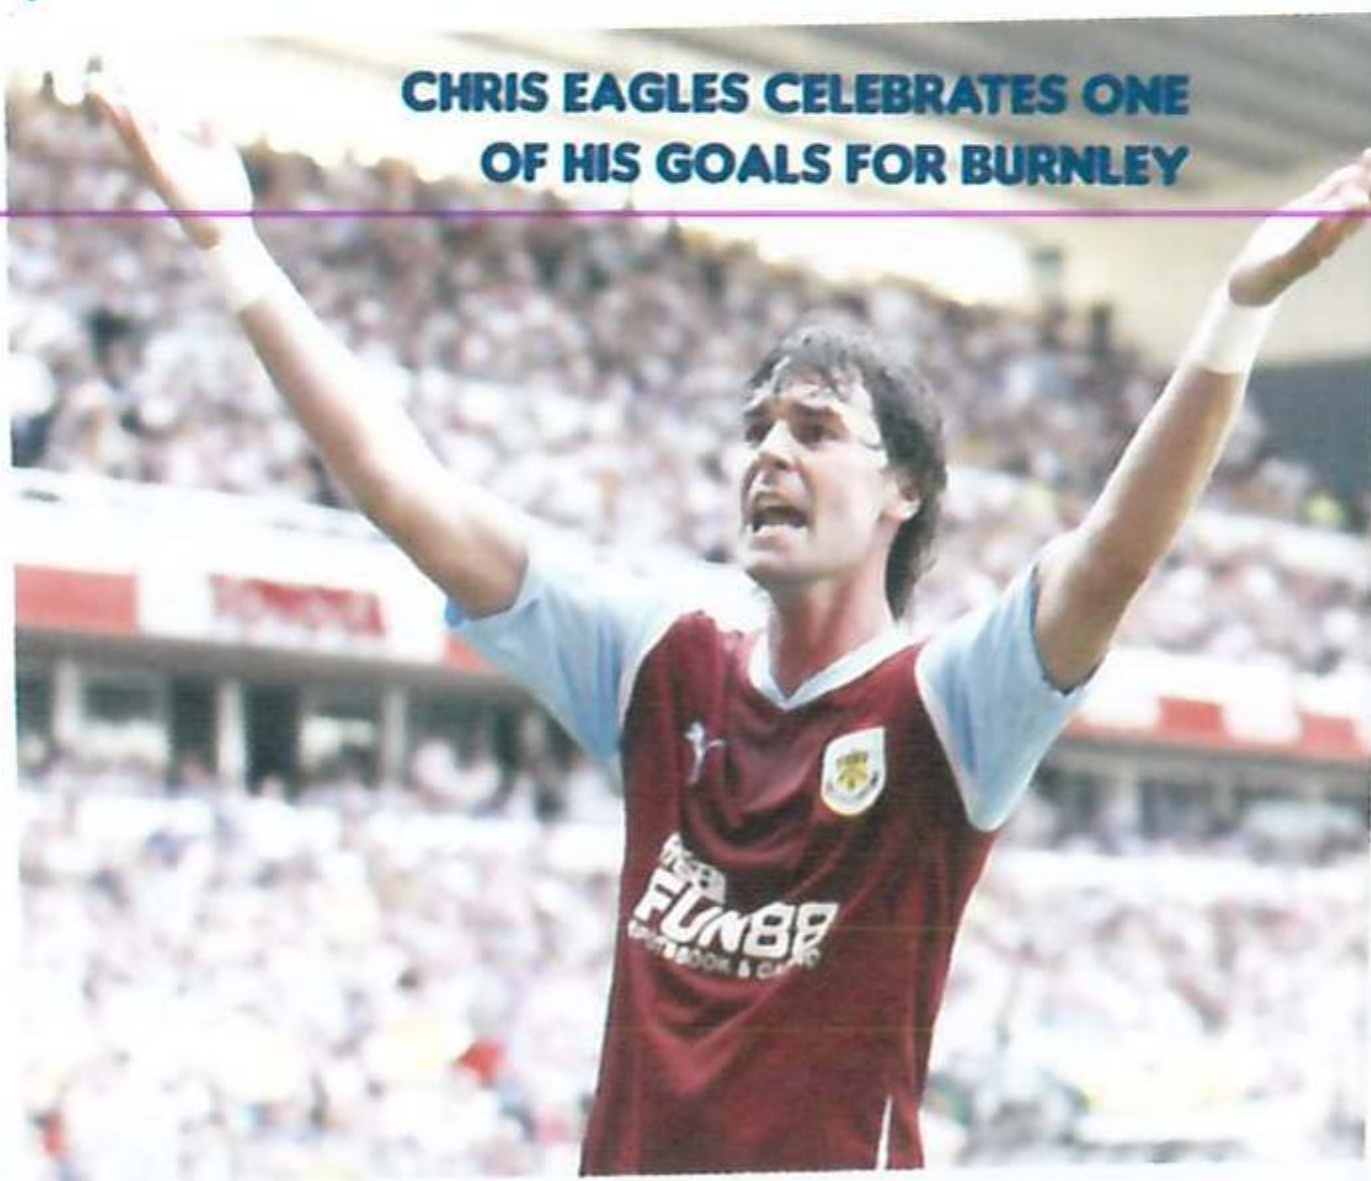

BY MARK HEYS

Last weekend's emphatic win over Wigan Athletic was Wanderers' first league victory at the DW Stadium in four years and marked a number of firsts for quite a few of the squad.

For Nigel Reo-Coker it signified his first goal in the Premier League since helping Aston Villa to a 2-1 win against Tottenham Hotspur in September 2008, and whilst the hardworking midfielder hasn't been recognised amongst the goals much since his days as a West Ham United player, the Wanderers supporters will hope he can grab a few more during his time at the Reebok Stadium. In total, the 27-year-old scored just three goals in his time at Villa Park, but boasts a career total of 21 inclusive of his spells with the Hammers and Wimbledon.

Last week's match winner and overall Man of the Match Chris Eagles has already given Bolton a glimpse of his goalscoring intent with a fine long-range strike in the League Cup win at Aston Villa last month but his composed injury-time effort seven days ago was his first in the league for David Ngog was another who celebrated notching his first goal in Bolton colours against Wigan, showing a quick shift in feet in the box to fire past ex-Bolton goalkeeper Ali Al-Habsi after Kevin Davies had made a nuisance of himself down the right hand flank. Ironically, according to tabloid rumours, the French forward came close to joining today's opponents from Liverpool prior to making the decision of staying in the North West area.

Wanderers and his first top-flight goal since scoring a consolation late on for Burnley against West Ham United in a 5-3 defeat at Upton Park nigh on two years ago.

However, the playmaker has always been able to point to a fine goalscoring record – at Turf Moor last season he found the net no less than 15 times, which included braces against Barnsley, Hull, Burton Albion and Derby County.

As for today, Wanderers will be going all out for their first home victory against Sunderland in four years. The Black Cats have won on their last two visits to the Reebok Stadium, while back in May 2009 both teams played out an end-of-season scoreless draw.

MY MEMORY – SUNDERLAND

The great escape was completed in May 2008 when strike from El-Hadji Diouf and an own goal from Daryll Murphy gave Bolton a 2-0 win over Sunderland to all but ensure Premier League football would continue to be played at the Reebok.

EL HADJI DIOUF SCORES AGAINST SUNDERLAND IN 2008

Just a matter of weeks previous a heavy defeat at Aston Villa looked to have severely dented Wanderers' survival bid but, to be fair, they kept with the job in hand and gave that extra bit of effort which lead to some memorable results, including wins against Middlesbrough and a point at Tottenham.

Gavin McCann's only league goal in a Bolton shirt won the game at the Riverside Stadium, while Stelios – always renowned for his contributions in the final third – helped to get a 1-1 draw at White Hart Lane.

Those results, coupled with Reading's dip in form meant that Bolton headed into the last two matches with their destiny in their own hands. And after all but sealing survival against the Black Cats, Wanderers ended Chelsea's faint title ambitions with a 2-2 draw at Stamford Bridge on the final day of the season.

DELIGHT FOR THE WHITES
AS WANDERERS BEAT
SUNDERLAND

Being a football supporter is never straightforward and in the words of Sir Alex Ferguson it was certainly 'squeaky bum time' three years ago.

TEAM-MATES

Kevin Davies started his professional career back in the mid-1990s, during a golden period for Chesterfield.

The Wanderers skipper was at the heart of the Spireites FA Cup run during which they reached the 1996/97 FA Cup semi-final, taking the then Premier League outfit Middlesbrough to a replay after an epic 3-3 draw in the first tie.

Here, Davies speaks about his former team-mates in a photograph taken from their fifth round triumph over Nottingham Forest.

JON HOWARD

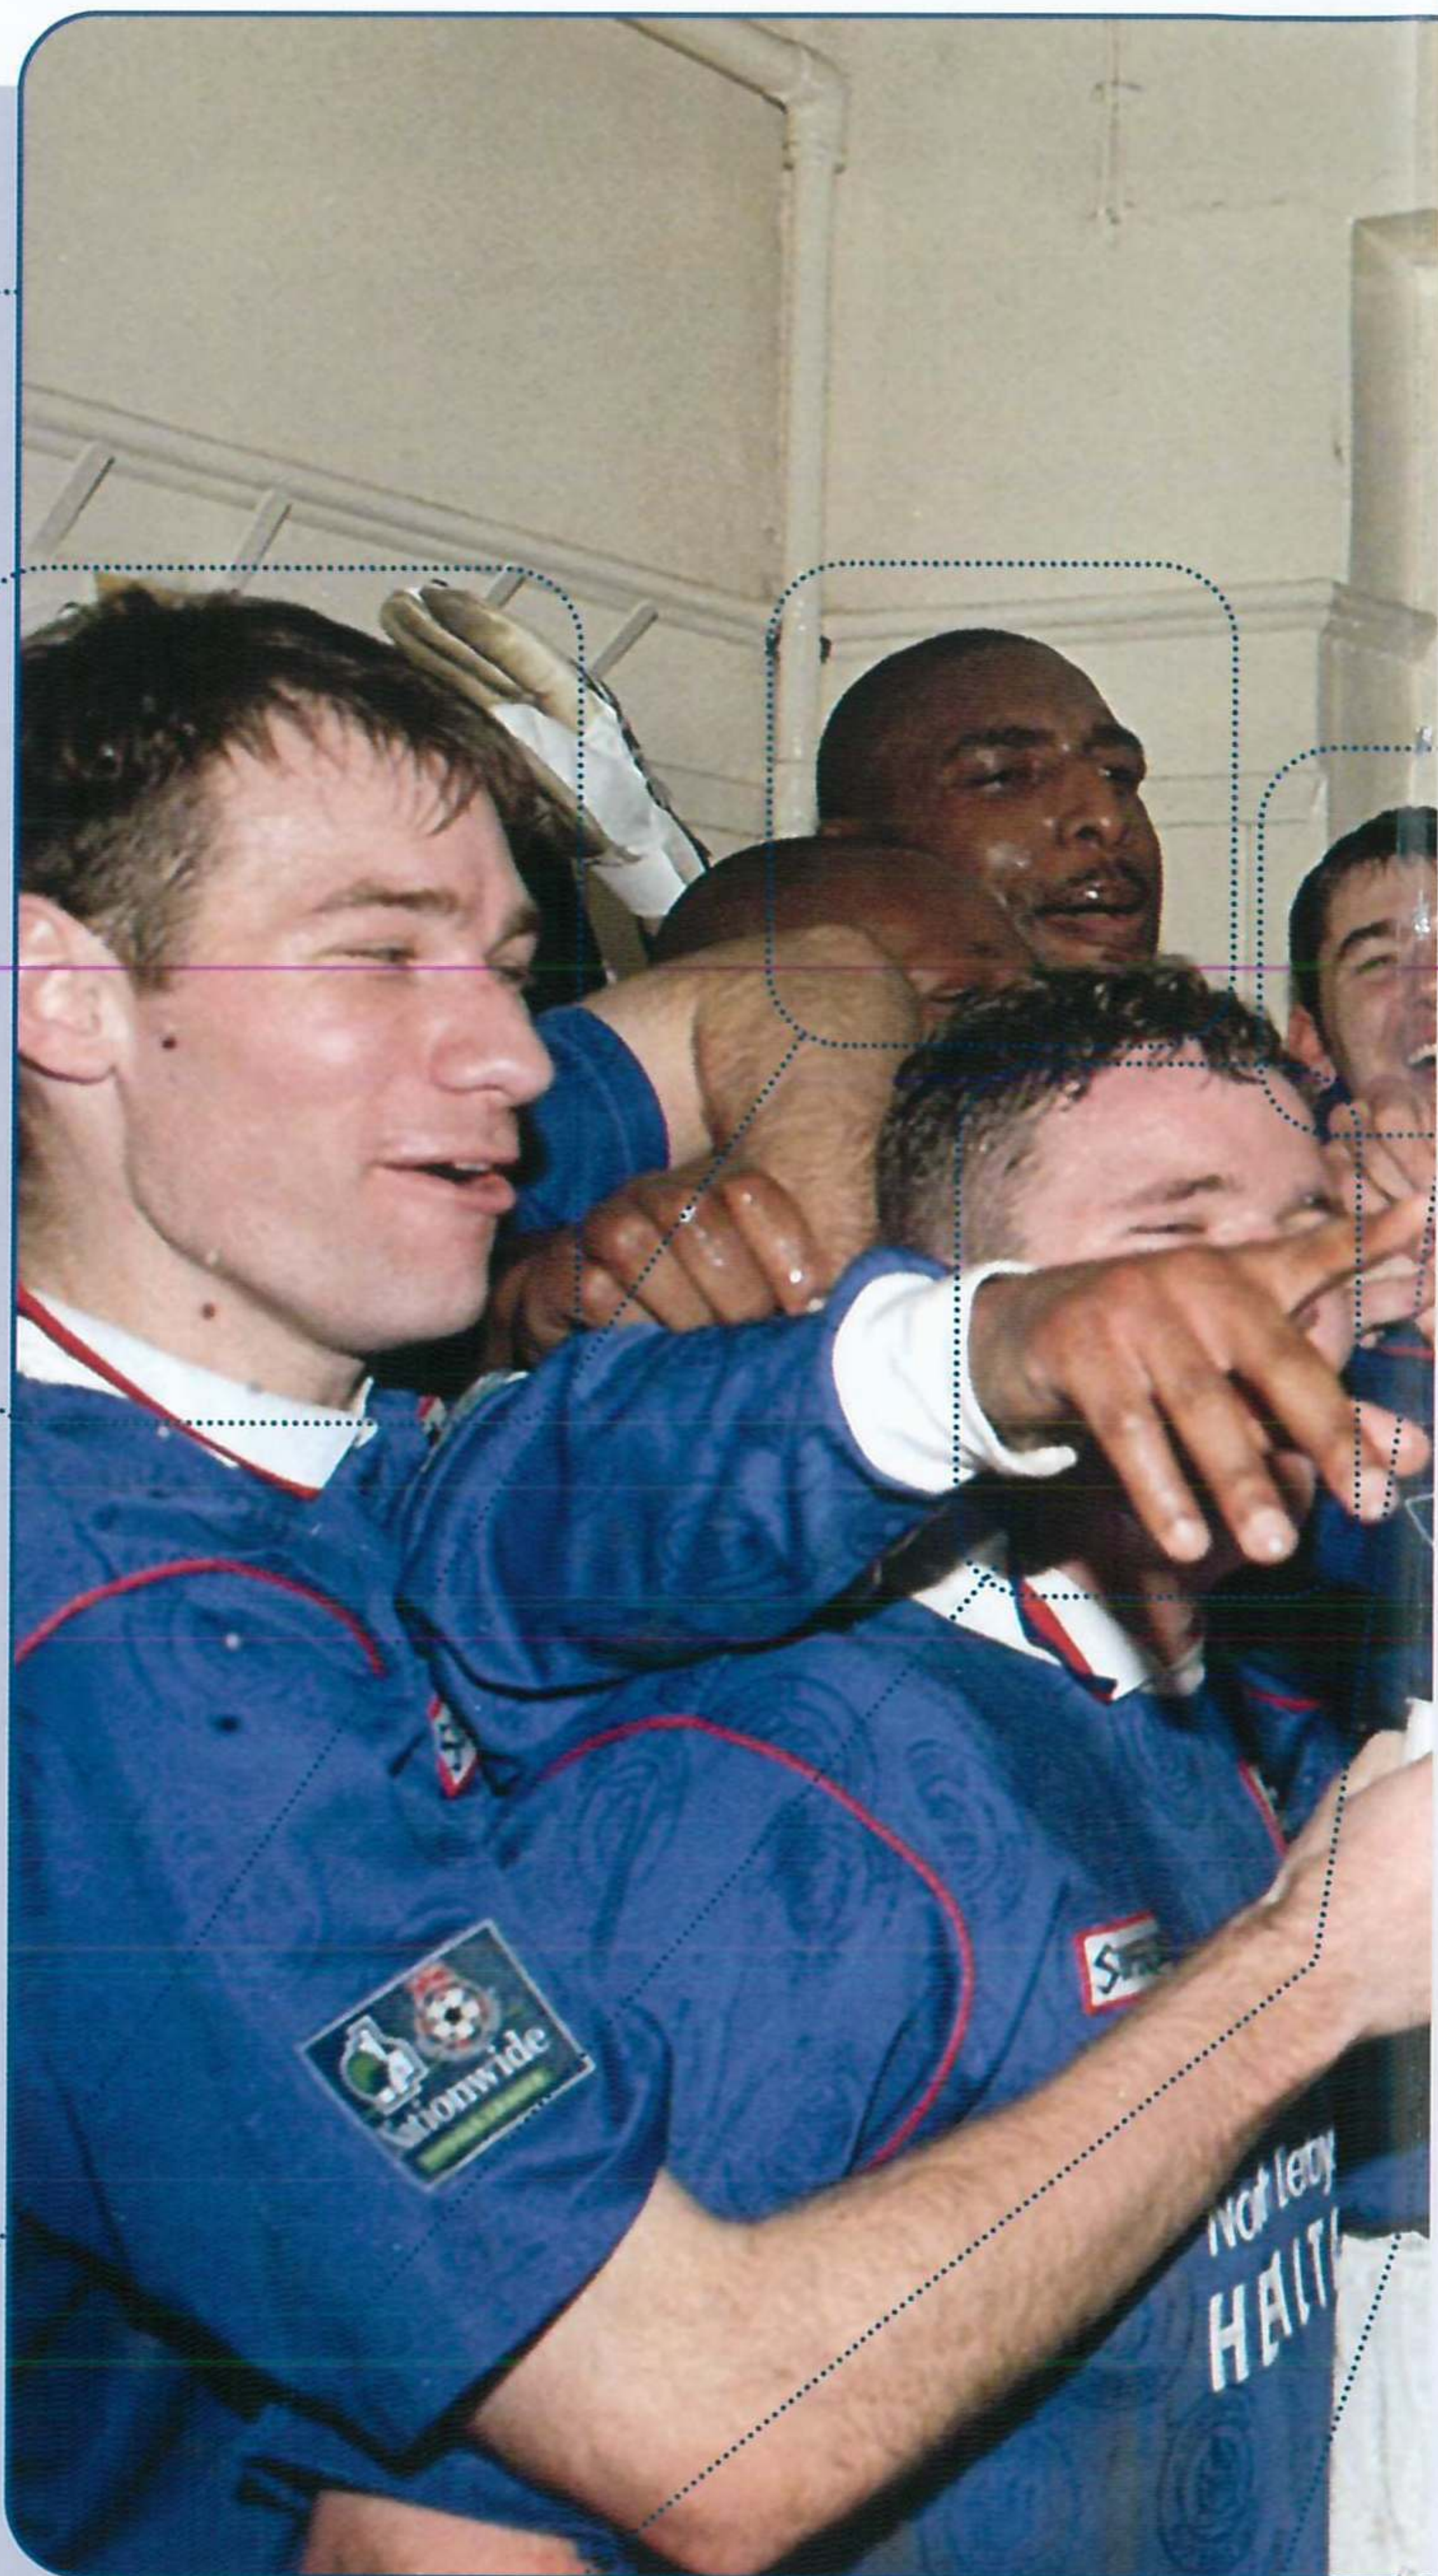

The last time I heard from Jon he was working as a policeman. He was the player at the centre of the controversy in the semi-final because, with the score at 2-0, he had the shot that hit the bar and bounced down over the line but the referee didn't award the goal. He will go down as a big player in Chesterfield's history.

ANDY MORRIS

Andy still to this day has an association with Chesterfield, where he now works as a community officer. I used to travel in with him to training every day when I was about 16 and 17 years old. He is absolutely massive – he is about 6ft 5in tall, but is a gentle giant. He put us 1-0 up in the semi-final, scoring the rebound after my shot had been saved. He won the penalty for the second goal as well after he was fouled by the Middlesbrough goalkeeper when he tried to take the ball around him – for a big lad he had brilliant feet. He was one of my first strike partners and I learnt a lot from him.

PAUL HOLLAND

Paul had a couple of stints in management with Mansfield, but I'm not sure what exactly he is doing now. He was our holding midfielder who could put in a tackle.

BILLY MERCER

Billy was another great lad who was outstanding for us, especially during the cup run. He got his move to Bristol City on the back of his performances for us and now he works as the goalkeeper coach at Burnley.

CHRIS PERKINS

Chris was our left-back. The manager, as a long-running joke, always told us not to pass to him. But in all seriousness he was a good player and is still a good friend of mine. He often visits the training ground at Bolton because he now works for Adidas.

KEVIN DAVIES

I was fresh-faced then – and a bit quicker! I had some good times in my four years with Chesterfield. We had a promotion winning season, beating Bury 2-0 at Wembley in the play-offs, and obviously this cup run.

The lads all used to knock about together and there's a couple of those players that I would call my good mates. Football was a bit different then – we'd all have a few drinks together in the players' lounge after the game and then sometimes head into Chesterfield in the evening.

I enjoy looking back on the days that I had earlier in my career because I haven't really had much time to reflect on all my past achievements and my team-mates from yesteryear.

CHRIS BEAUMONT

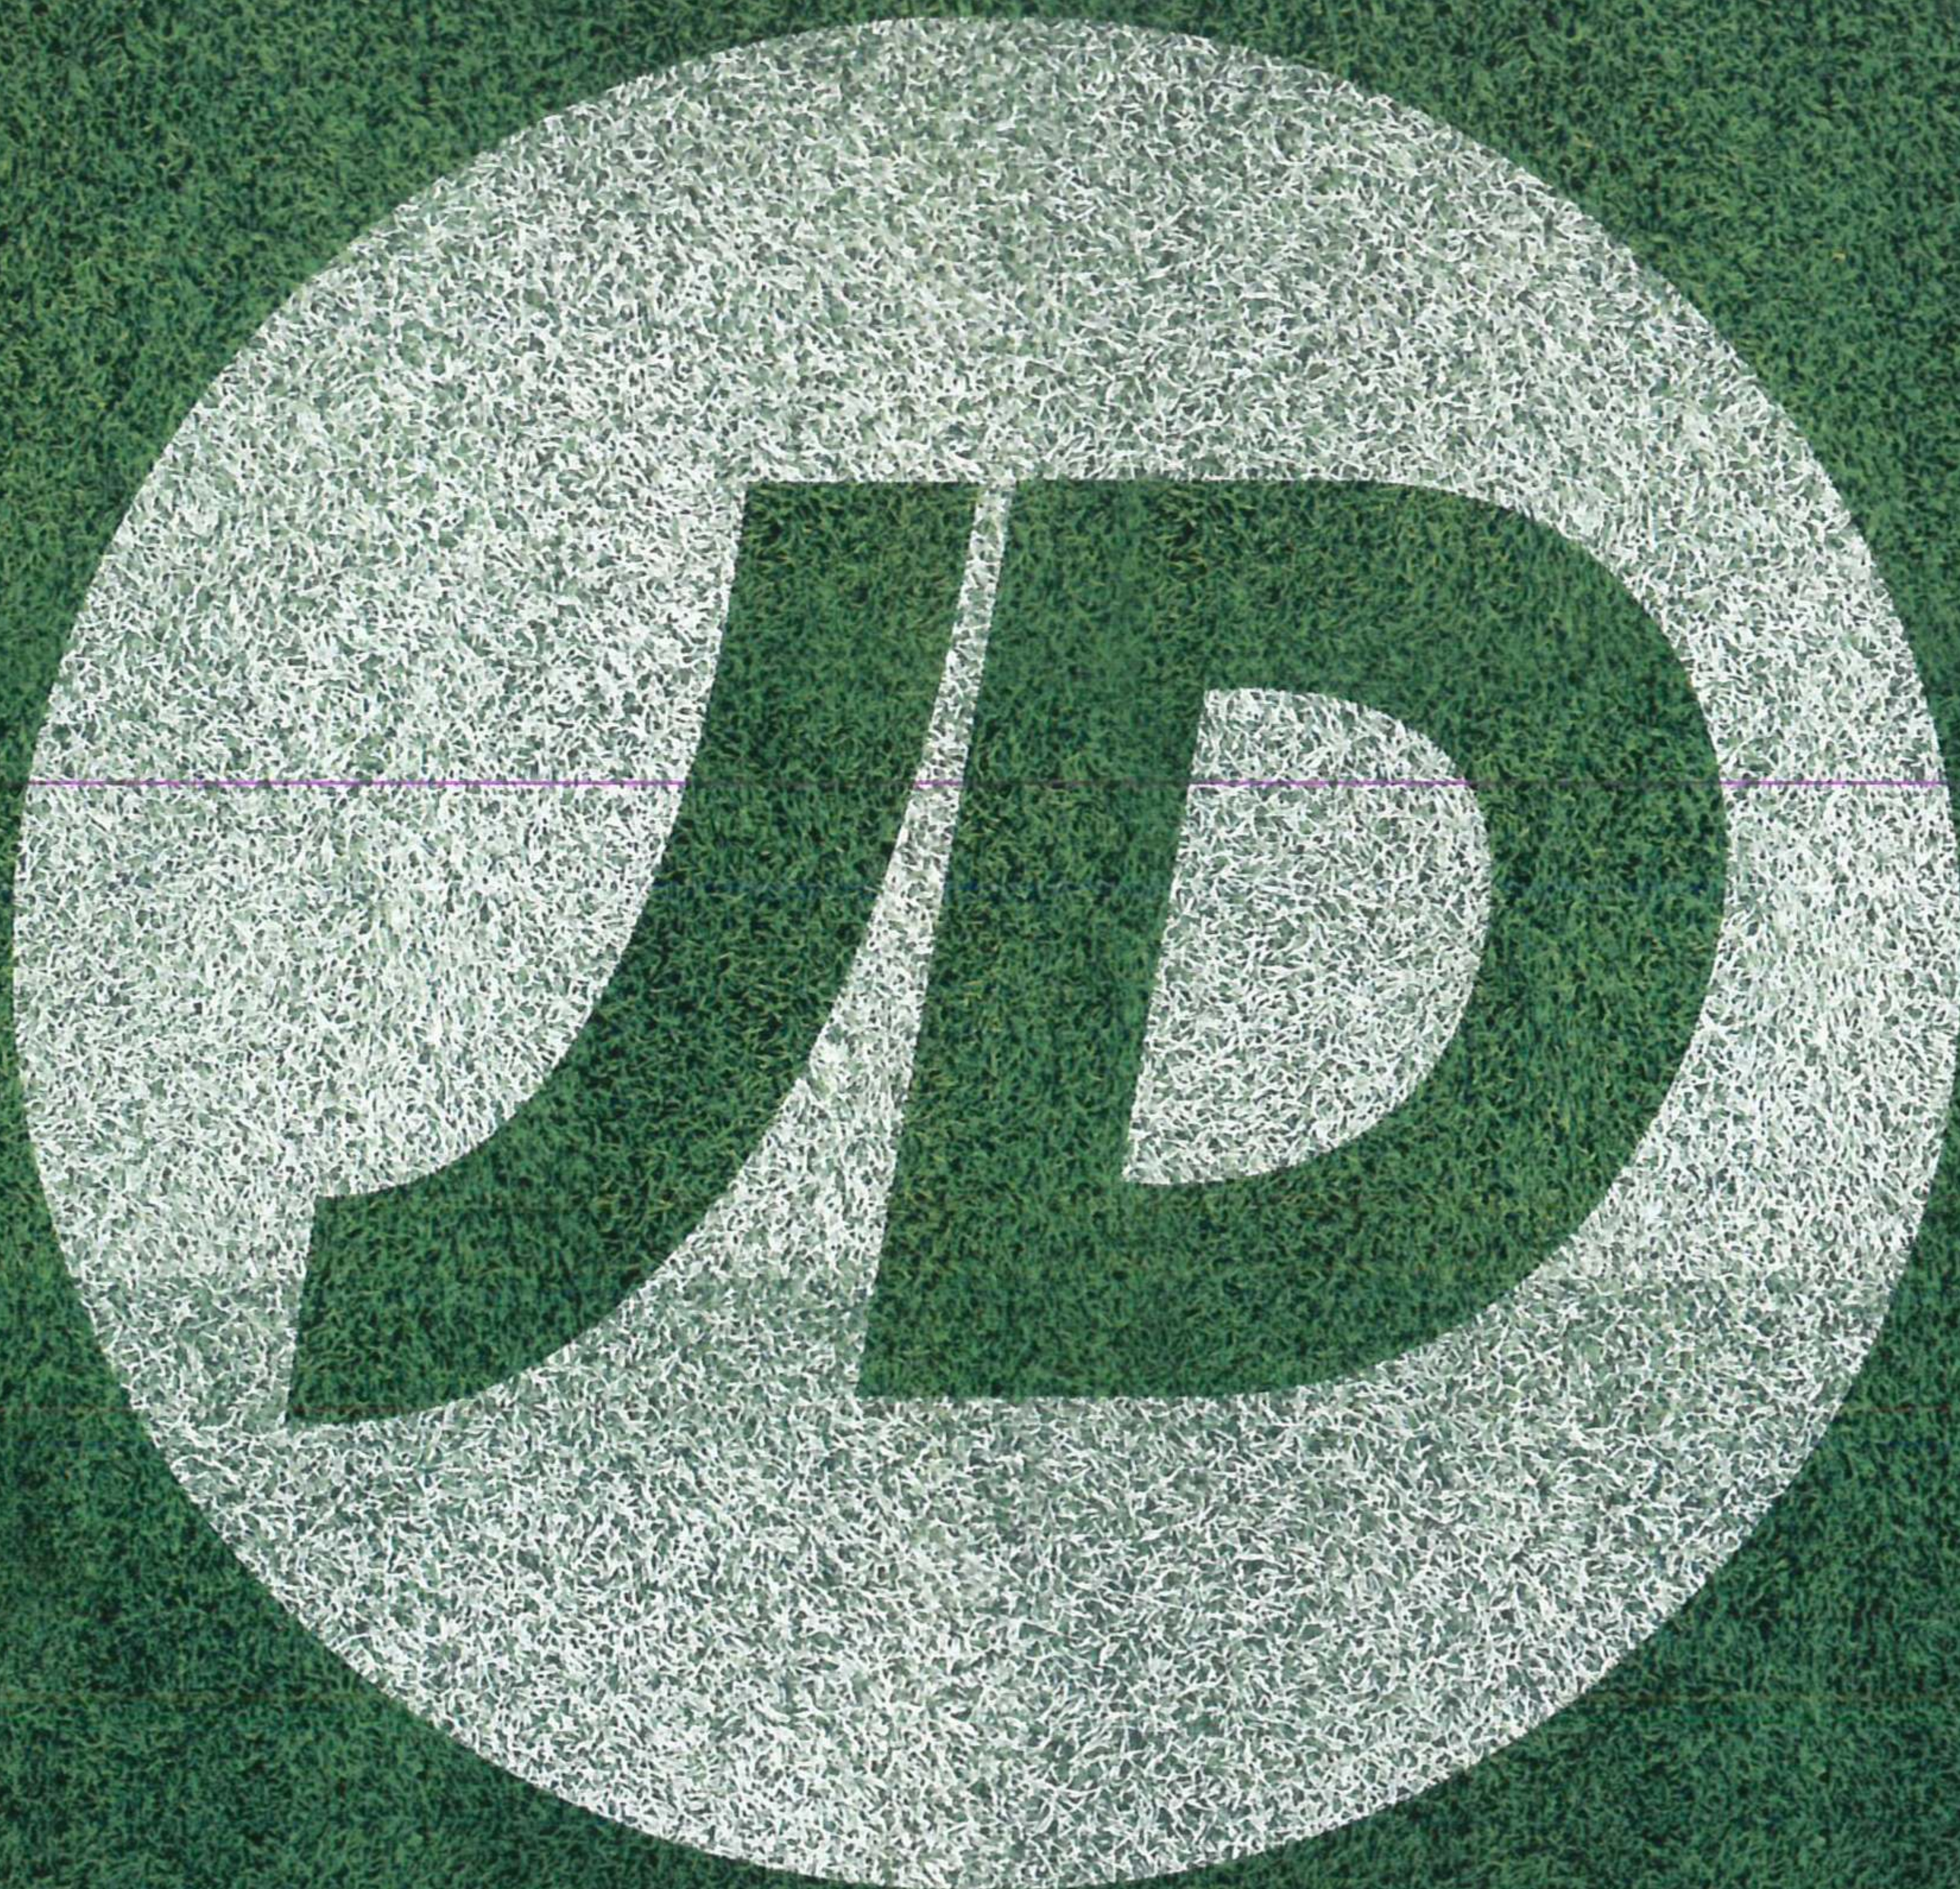

As far as I'm aware, Chris is now running a post office, so it's amazing how everyone's lives and careers can shape out. In the quarter-final against Wrexham I was suspended and he scored the winning goal, but he missed out in the semi-final because I came back into the team. He is a Sheffield lad through and through.

JAMIE HEWITT

The last time I heard from Jamie he was working as Chesterfield's physiotherapist. He famously scored the goal to make it 3-3, but no one actually knows what he was doing in the Middlesbrough penalty box at that time!

TOM CURTIS

Tom's a lad who is very well educated. He only came into football at a late age but was a very good central midfielder with a lot of energy. I could be mistaken, but I think he is now doing some job in sports at Loughborough University – I will have to give him a call to catch-up!

BWFCISS IN SOUTH AFRICA

The BWFCISS have just returned from South Africa after the final week of the selection process for five boys to attend the Grand Skills final here at the Reebok Stadium this coming November. The whole project in South Africa has had significant media coverage and even appeared on their version of Sky Sports, Super Sports.

Earlier this year when Dave Bailey first went out in May he watched a tournament run by the local government and the South African Football Association. He and local scouts identified 40 boys to compete over two separate weeks for the opportunity of being one of five players selected to compete the Grand Skills final 2011. The Grand Skills final is an event held by the ISS and this year will be its fourth year. The event hosts players selected by the BWFCISS coaches from Programmes that have been run all over the world with this year looking to be our busiest yet.

The Free State of South Africa government who have heavily supported this project commented;

"BWFC and its world famous International Soccer School has really given these boys such a positive experience which will stand them in good stead for the rest of their lives. These boys are from small villages and this is truly a life lesson and one which we strongly support. We, with Dave believe these boys will have a dream come true."

Dave, assisted by Luke Ogilvie, worked with the 40 boys not only coaching and testing them on the pitch, but also in the classroom with seminars on sport psychology and nutrition. During the final week the players were also set a challenge to be picked in a target squad to face Bloemfontein Celtic's youth team, a professional side in South Africa. Of the 40 boys 18 were chosen to play. The game went well and they did not embarrass themselves in anyway losing 3-1, in the second half being the better team.

Dave Bailey said: "These boys have been a real credit to the initiative set up by the Premier and the Free State Government, the boys have worked very hard for us and have really shown great attitude and desire to learn. They have been put through our testing and we have had some of the best scores I have had on the ISS. As for the game against Celtic we were only looking at performance, fitness levels and attitude. The game was the biggest some of these boys have played it has helped set the five players chosen for the Grand Skills final."

The five boys picked will arrive with Simsport, who have also been heavily involved in this exciting project. The boys will truly be in for a real treat as they have never even had passports before. This will be the first time they have not only flown, but left South Africa. We will give them a real Wanderers welcome.

my hometown

SEAN DAVIS

By Robert Urbani

In the latest edition of 'My Hometown' Sean Davis tells the readers of the official matchday programme about what it was like growing up in South London in the borough of the capital that he calls home, Clapham.

First all of all Sean, tell us a bit about life as a child in Clapham?

It was good growing up and I enjoyed my childhood. I had a lot friends on the estate near to where I lived and we'd play football all the time, kicking balls about and causing mischief.

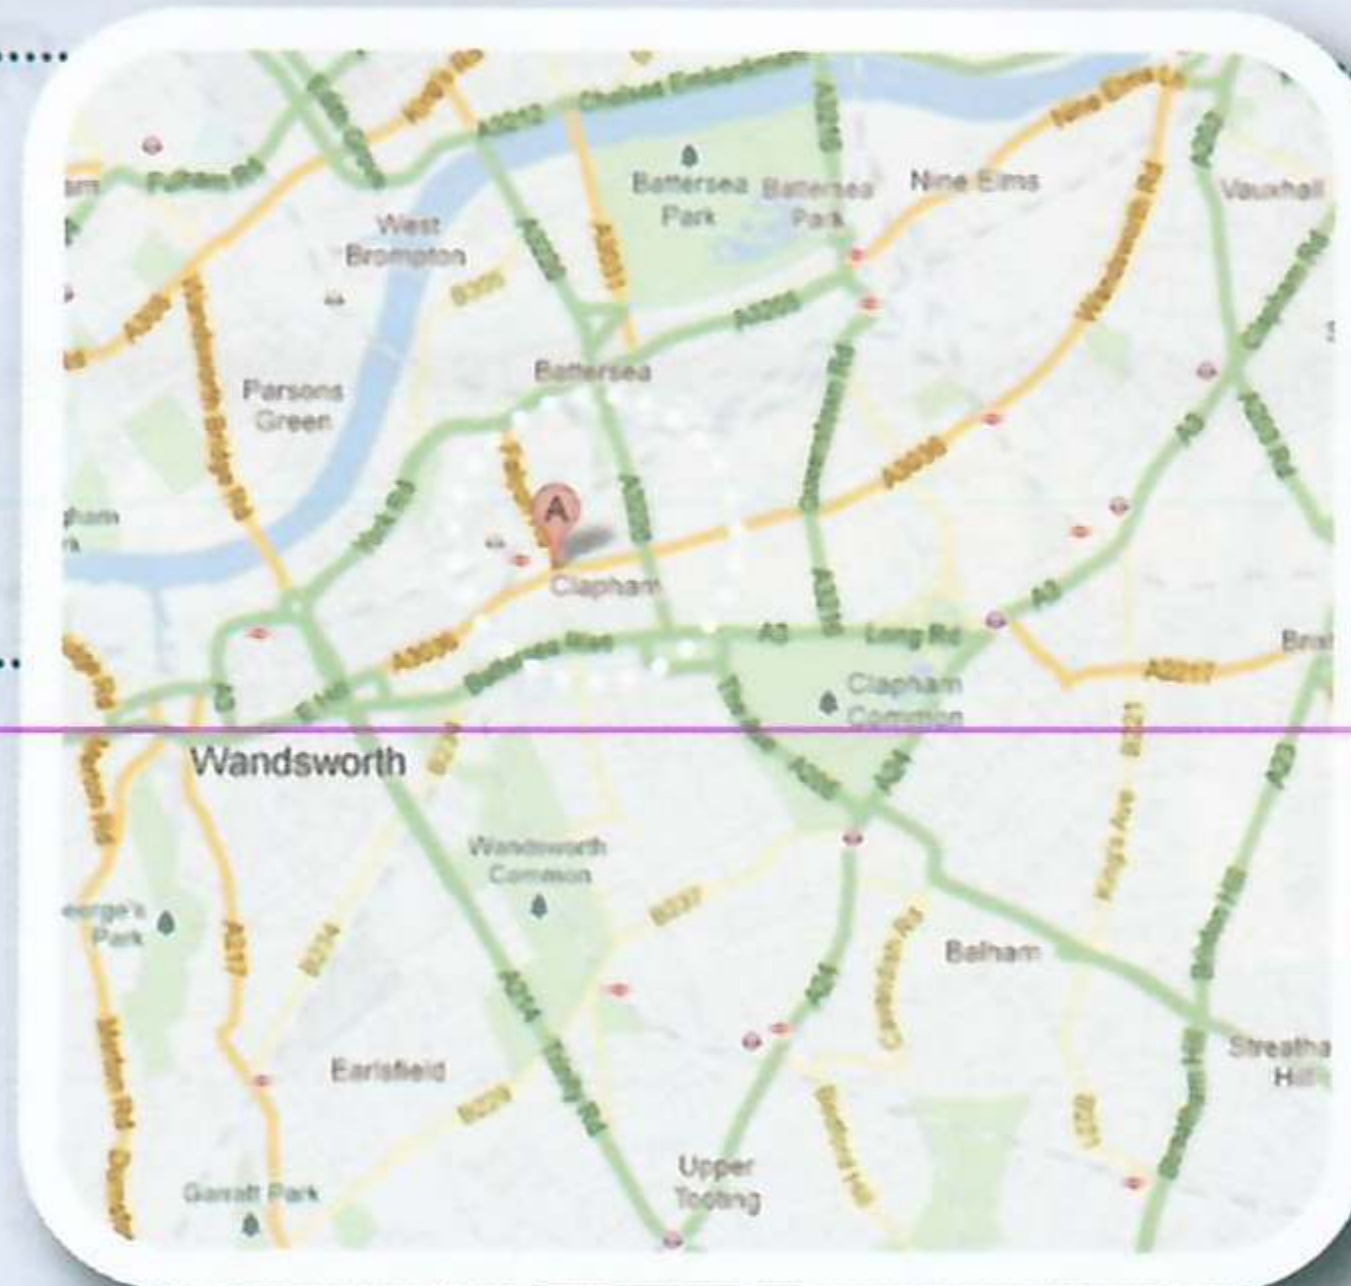

I lived about ten minutes away from Clapham Junction train station and I used to have walk there every day to get to school, but with me being a bit slower in a morning then I dragged it out to about 20 minutes!

Clapham Common was another area where my friends and I used to hang out. It's a big grassy area where we could play all different sports – we had big games of football, with our estate versus the nearby estate. It was like a big rivalry! I used to go fishing a lot on the Common too. They were good times.

If anyone was visiting Clapham for the day, what would you recommend them to see and do?

Well, for a start, I would tell them to avoid Lavender Hill after all the riots!

The thing with Clapham is that it's a stone's throw away from most places in central London. If you wanted to go uptown to a nice area then it would only take ten minutes on a bus to get to Kings Road. Battersea Park and Hyde Park aren't that far away either.

But in Clapham itself then I would recommend going to Battersea Rise because there are lots of nice bars and restaurants there.

Who is the most famous person to come from your neck of the woods?

There were quite a few footballers, such as Clinton Morrison and Jamie Lawrence who played for Crystal Palace and Bradford respectively. In terms of music there was the So Solid Crew (below) also, while I think the actress Leslie Ash is from Clapham too.

What's the local cuisine like?

Near to where I lived at the end of our road there was a fried chicken shop but I always used to call in a pub called the Beaufoy because they cooked delicious Caribbean style food. I suppose it depends where you are from because London is a very diverse and multi-cultural city.

When everyone thinks of a stereotypical London meal or snack they sometimes come up with jellied eels, but that is more of an East London thing. Being from south of the river, I don't know of any places in Clapham where you could buy those.

As a child, did you support your local team?

I was a Chelsea fan – I could get straight on a bus and be at Stamford Bridge in next to no time. It turns out that it was quite ironic that I started my career playing for Fulham, who are Chelsea's nearest neighbours and historically one of their main rivals.

My whole family are massive Chelsea fans, although all the people in the area where I lived when I was growing up seemed to support Manchester United and Liverpool. I suppose it was the era when those two clubs were successful, when players such as John Barnes and Bryan Robson were the big names.

When I started supporting Chelsea, they had players like Kerry Dixon and David Speedie. My dad first took me on to Stamford Bridge, Chelsea played one of the Sheffield teams and lost 3-2. I was stood in the Shed End – times really have changed if you look at how that ground has been developed over the last 20 years.

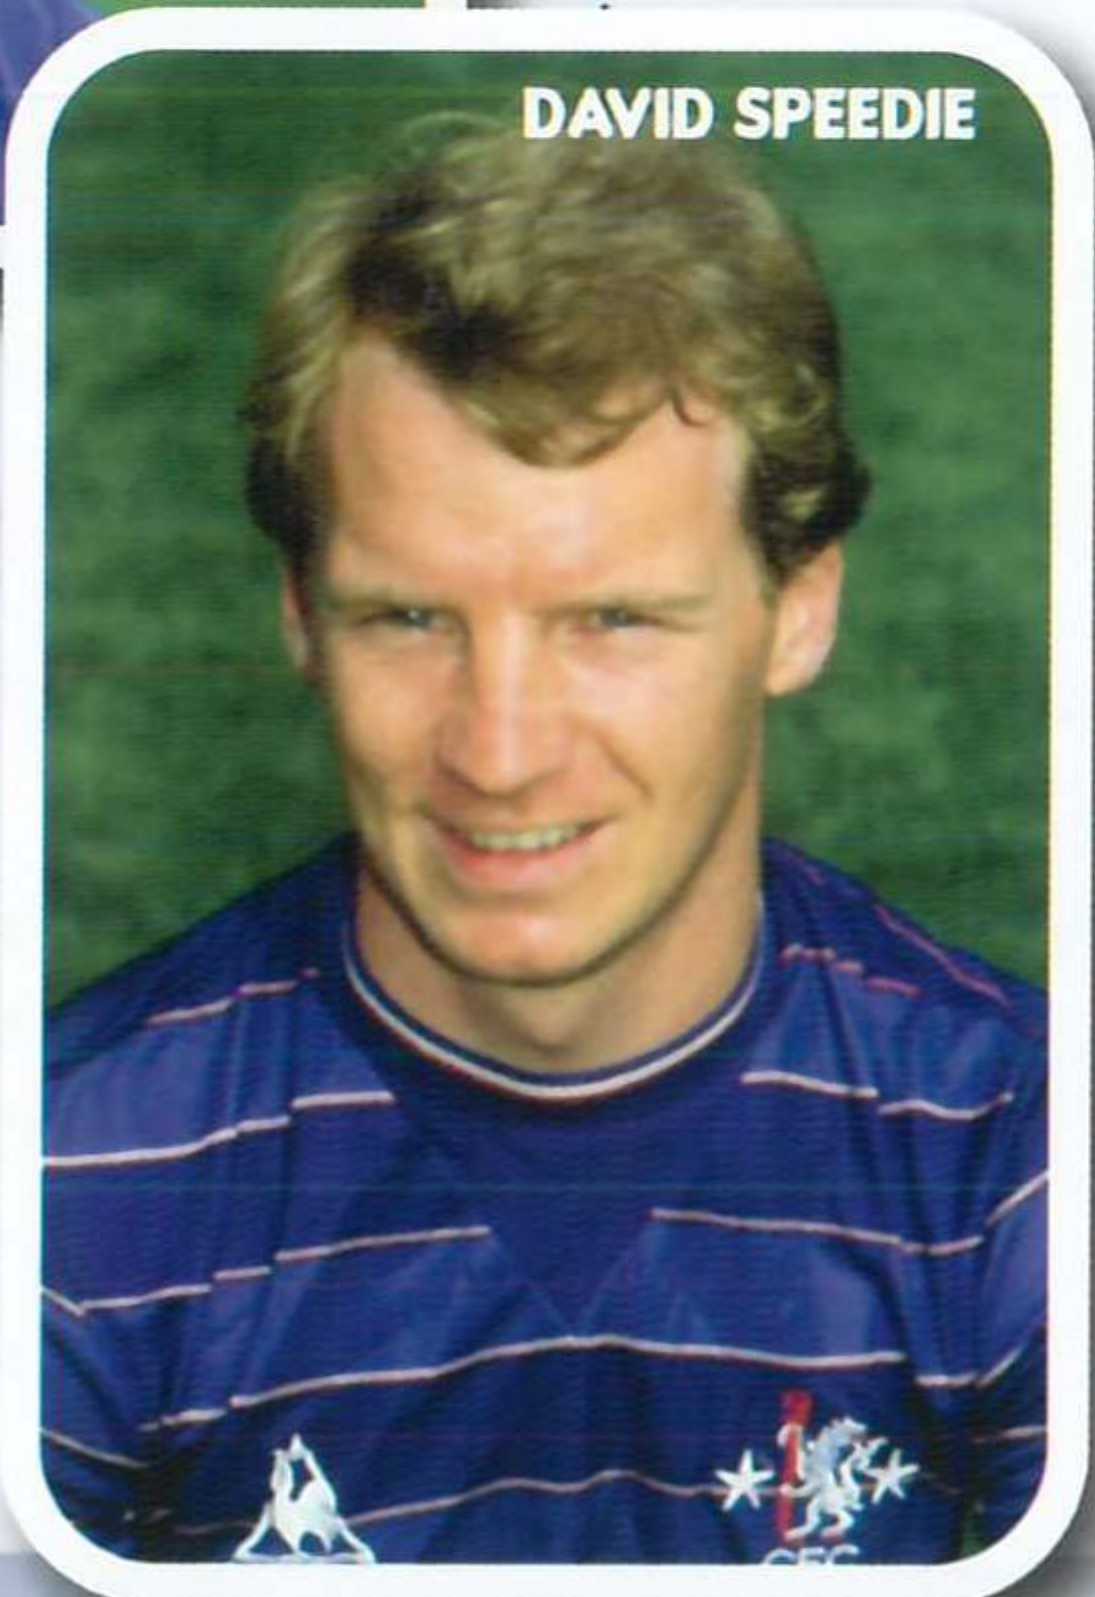

What do you miss most about living away from London?

Just the faces I used to see all the time like family and friends. Whenever I drive back through the area it always brings back memories such as where I used to play football or get into trouble playing knock, knock ginger with my pals.

I don't really get chance to go back to Clapham that often as I bought my parents a house and moved them out towards the countryside so they could enjoy retirement. Inner London is a bit too fast and frantic when you get a bit older.

But whenever I do go back I always call in to see my best friend's mum and dad. I used to muck about there everyday after school and his mum would always cook me dinner.

If I did ever move back down south then I don't think it would be to Clapham. It would probably be more towards Surrey way where it is a bit quieter.

And finally Sean, did you ever or do you still use any Cockney Rhyming Slang?

Yes, every now and again but people don't really understand what I'm getting at in this part of the country, so I just try and keep it basic. Whenever I'm in London I can never understand what all the young kids are saying - I never thought it would get that way being a London lad!

MEET THE SCHOLAR

Name:

Zach Clough

Zach Clough says that he is determined to regain his goalscoring touch and help fire the Bolton Wanderers Under-18s side up the Academy league table.

The diminutive frontman started his first full season a scholar in fine form, scoring three goals within the opening months of the campaign.

And having returned to full fitness following a short injury lay-off, Clough is aiming to carry on where he left off.

"I started the season very well, but then I picked up a groin injury that kept me out for a couple of matches," he said.

"I scored in my first game back against Sunderland, but unfortunately missed a penalty in the next game. I've got to try and stay confident and look to score goals throughout the rest of the season.

"We've been playing well as a team but I think that we can do a bit better if we start to take our chances. I'm hoping to score 15 goals and help to get the team higher in the league."

Clough first started his association with the football club almost a decade ago, however he was much coveted as youngster with Wanderers having to beat off competition from arguably the biggest club in world football for his signature.

Speaking about his journey to Bolton's Under-18s team, Clough explained: "I'm from Denton in Manchester and I played for my local side before I was scouted by Bolton. Manchester United wanted me to sign for them at the same time and I had a decision to make.

"I chose to come to Bolton because United signed about 30 to 40 players at that age group. They were fielding different teams every week and it would have been difficult to get an opportunity. My dad helped me choose to come here and it's a decision I have not regretted. Things have gone very well over the last few years and I'm enjoying my football.

"In the Under-12s and Under-13s I wasn't a regular starter in the team but as soon as I progressed through to the Under-15s the coach Neil Pointon gave me a chance and I played and started games much more often.

"David Lee was in charge for the Under-16s at that time and because of my performances he selected me in that team, even though it was up an age group. And last summer I went to the Milk Cup in Ireland with the Under-18s, so things have progressed well in recent years.

"I was given my scholarship last October so although I still had to concentrate on my exams at school last year I had a lot of time to prepare everything. This year I've enjoyed being a scholar and hopefully it can continue that way."

ACADEMY

BOLTON WANDERERS UNDER-18s 0
WEST BROMWICH ALBION UNDER-18s 1

Wanderers Under-18s were edged out by the solitary goal last weekend, losing 1-0 in their meeting with West Bromwich Albion at Lostock.

After a below-par first half, Head Coach David Lee said there were positives to take after the interval, although ultimately the scholars just fell short in their quest to find the goal that would have earned them a point.

In previous weeks the team had put in strong performances against Wolves and Stoke, but Lee said that for one reason or another they couldn't repeat those displays against the Baggies.

He said: "It was a completely different performance to the one from last week as we struggled to reach the standard set last week in this game.

"From the first few minutes I could sense the performance was going to be a disappointing one. The players reached a very high standard last week, and my challenge to them for this game was to attain that same level, but unfortunately too many could not repeat it.

"Our passing was way off our usual standard, although one thing I demand and got was a work ethic to compete and fight for every ball. During the season performances will naturally dip, yet the work ethic will always be there.

"West Brom's aerial dominance resulted in us conceding a goal from a second phase of play from a set-piece.

"The first half West Brom edged, but throughout the second half we did create chances to score, although we couldn't capitalise on our dominance.

"There are always sections of the game that I identify for improvement and it's a great learning curve for the players to be able to view the DVD and analyse the positives and negatives to improve each individual.

"We viewed the game as a group on a Monday morning and then put the learning into practice on the training ground. One thing for certain is the honesty of my players and the result will hurt them. This gives them a determination to work hard and improve their technical level as well as their game understanding."

Assistant Coach Tony Kelly added: "We've worked hard with the lads in training this week to get ourselves ready for the next game. Hopefully one or two of the lads who have been injured will come back, along with those who played in the reserves."

Bolton Wanderers: Fielding, Coleman (Maher 65), Matthews(Bailey 85), Threlkeld, Dennis, Woodland, Lester, Wolstenholme, Clough, Youngs, Caton.

A last-gasp strike by substitute Ravel Morrison was enough to see off a determined Wanderers side in the Manchester Senior Cup at the County Ground.

The Whites had looked to be heading for their second consecutive penalty shoot-out of the competition, but were defeated right at the death.

In a game that was a repeat of last year's final, the Whites dominated for large spells and will certainly consider the result to be a harsh reflection of the match itself.

Wanderers had started the game brightly, with Jack Sampson putting the United defence under pressure early on.

It was not long after that when Warren Joyce's side showed their worth. Mame Diouf played the ball back in the box, only for Davide Petrucci to send his shot over the crossbar.

Diouf was again the orchestrator in the 15th minute when he provided Paul Pogba with an inch-perfect pass inside the area. Rob Lainton was to come to the Whites' rescue however, producing an excellent reflex save to keep his side level.

John Henry's side should have arguably taken the lead just five minutes later after a beautifully crafted team effort. Michael O'Halloran powered inside the box after good work from Joe Riley, before pulling the ball back for Sanmi Odelusi. Bolton looked certain to score with the goal at their mercy, but some last-ditch United defending spared their blushes and kept the scores level.

Wanderers unfortunately then lost the influential Adam Blakeman through injury, but his absence did not seem to faze a side that were clearly on a mission.

United hit back through Reece Brown and Marnick Vermijl who both went close in quick succession, before Tope Obadeyi went within inches of scoring after a mazy run into the box, only to be denied by Sean McGinty on the line.

Bolton started the second half as they had the first, with Sampson almost forcing Michele Fornasier to put through his own net with an awkward ball across the face of goal.

RESERVES

By Emma Norris

Minutes later, a delightful run down the right-hand side by Josh Vela in the 52nd minute deserved more, with Odelusi's resulting shot sneaking just wide of the far post.

Wanderers were in the ascendency and looked the more likely victors as the game wore on. Chances became few and far between for both sides, with a looping header and a volley from outside the area from Sampson being the most notable effort of the closing stages.

Just as the game looked to be headed for a penalty shoot-out however, United broke a futile Bolton resistance with virtually the last kick of the game.

Morrison, a second-half substitute for William Keane, unleashed a scorching shot from the edge of the area that left Lainton helpless and secured an arguably undeserved victory for the Red Devils.

Bolton Wanderers: Lainton, Riley, Kellett, McQuade, Blakeman (MacGregor 21), O'Halloran, Vela, Sampson, Odelusi (Fletcher 73), Obadeyi (Unused substitutes: Lynch, Eckersely, Irwin)

Manchester United: Amos, Vermijl, Fryers (McGinty 32), Fornasier, Keane (Morrison 69), Pogba, Diouf, Petrucci, Macheda (Unused substitutes: Coll, Thorpe, Cofie)

ROB AND SIMON ENJOY THEIR JOINT TREAT

Bolton Wanderers recently welcomed Simon and Rob to the Reebok to share a treat organised by Emma, Faye and Beth.

Simon and Rob were here to celebrate their birthdays and meet Bolton Wanderers Captain Kevin Davies. The club are sure they had a great experience here at the Reebok and should you wish to arrange a similar treat for someone you know please do not hesitate to give us a call at the office on 01204 673774 and we will be delighted to book you in.

Treats are available to suit all budgets and start at just £45 for two people, this treat includes a message in the matchday programme, the two guests will be escorted to pitchside to have their photo taken with Lofty the Lion and the main recipient will have their photo taken with a player of their choice. After the treat the guests return to their seats and the photos will be despatched the following week direct to their home.

The treats come in a number of different packages including the signed football £65, signed photo £75, family treat £85 and finally the signed shirt treat £135. For more details or to book one of these fantastic packages please do not hesitate to contact Bolton Wanderers Promotions on 01204 673774.

Treats make a great gift for all occasions but with Christmas looming and two home games in the festive period these make excellent Christmas gifts, but please remember treats are limited so book early to avoid disappointment.

WALKWAY OF FAME

The next phase for the Walkway of Fame is due to close on Saturday the 4th of November with the bricks then due to be laid in early December 2011*.

The bricks make a great gift for the Wanderers fan in your family whether it is a memorable birthday, maybe an 18th or 50th, or to recognise their constant support of the Super Whites.

For those who need to present the recipient with something prior to the brick being laid in December we will gladly produce a certificate.

The memorial stones are a poignant way to remember a fan who is no longer with us. It is a way to make sure they are still present, here at the Reebok Stadium every match day with their name on our Walkway of Fame, alternatively fans can enter their name in our memorial book located next to our main reception.

To arrange for any of the Bricks, Stones or Memorial Book please contact us on 01204 673663 or visit our website www.bwfc.co.uk and the memorial services and bricks are found under the fans tab.

Bolton Wanderers Community Trust kicked-off their One Game One Community weeks of action by hosting over 80 pupils from Chorley New Road, St Ethelbert's, Red Lane, St Peter & St Paul and Claypool School's to a Show Racism the Red Card educational event.

Pupils and staff were greeted on arrival by Lofty who welcomed them to the Platinum Suite in the Reebok Stadium.

The afternoon event saw pupils engaged in an anti-racism workshop delivered by SRtRC Education officer and ex professional footballer Christian Roberts.

During the session the young people discussed and gave their ideas and thoughts on racism and learnt about different forms of racism and their consequences, along with discovering different cultures from around the world affecting their lives using football as a tool for delivery.

After a short break the pupils were joined by Bolton first team players Gretar Steinsson and Darren Pratley as well as BWCT's Paul Makinson and Phil Mason (right) the Club Chaplain.

Pupils had the opportunity to ask questions about racism in sport and society to the panel of players.

The best question asked during the Q&A session received Bolton Wanderers tickets for the One Game One Community fixture against AFC Sunderland and a signed Wanderers football and also a signed SRtRC t-shirt by Gretar and Darren. Whilst the two other lucky pupils also received match tickets and a signed SRtRC t-shirt for the quality of their questions.

Ben Laycock BWCT Community Cohesion Manager said: "We are proud to stand alongside the work that is carried out by Show Racism the Red Card. We are very committed to the programme and we continue to support such a worthy organisation."

Pupils had an exclusive opportunity to receive signed 2011/12 Bolton Wanderers FC poster and other goodies which they took could take away from the event.

The day was a great occasion for the pupils and their teachers were very positive about the outcomes and importance of the event and are keen to continue with anti-racist education in their classroom.

During October half-term Bolton Wanderers Community Trust will be running free footballing sessions at a number of venues. The sessions will be free to attend for young people aged 8-18. The sessions are run on a drop in basis.

BOYATA 46

CHELSEA 5

STURRIDGE 2, 25, LAMPARD 15, 27, 59

MATCH REPORT

Chelsea demonstrated their title credentials running out 5-1 winners against Wanderers at the Reebok Stadium.

Daniel Sturridge, making his first return to Wanderers since his fruitful loan spell last term, bagged a brace, while Frank Lampard went home with the match ball after netting a hat-trick.

Consolation for the home fans was an improved second-half showing in which Dedryck Boyata netted his first goal for the club, whilst substitute Chris Eagles also rattled Petr Cech's right hand post.

THE GAFFER

58 "It was a tough afternoon for us, particularly in the first half. But regardless of who you are playing, you have to give yourself a chance in the game and we didn't do that. We allowed a goal to happen with a free header after 90 seconds and that gave us a mountain to climb.

"But in all of that you have got to say that there was some exquisite finishing from Chelsea - world-class players can be ruthless and they were today.

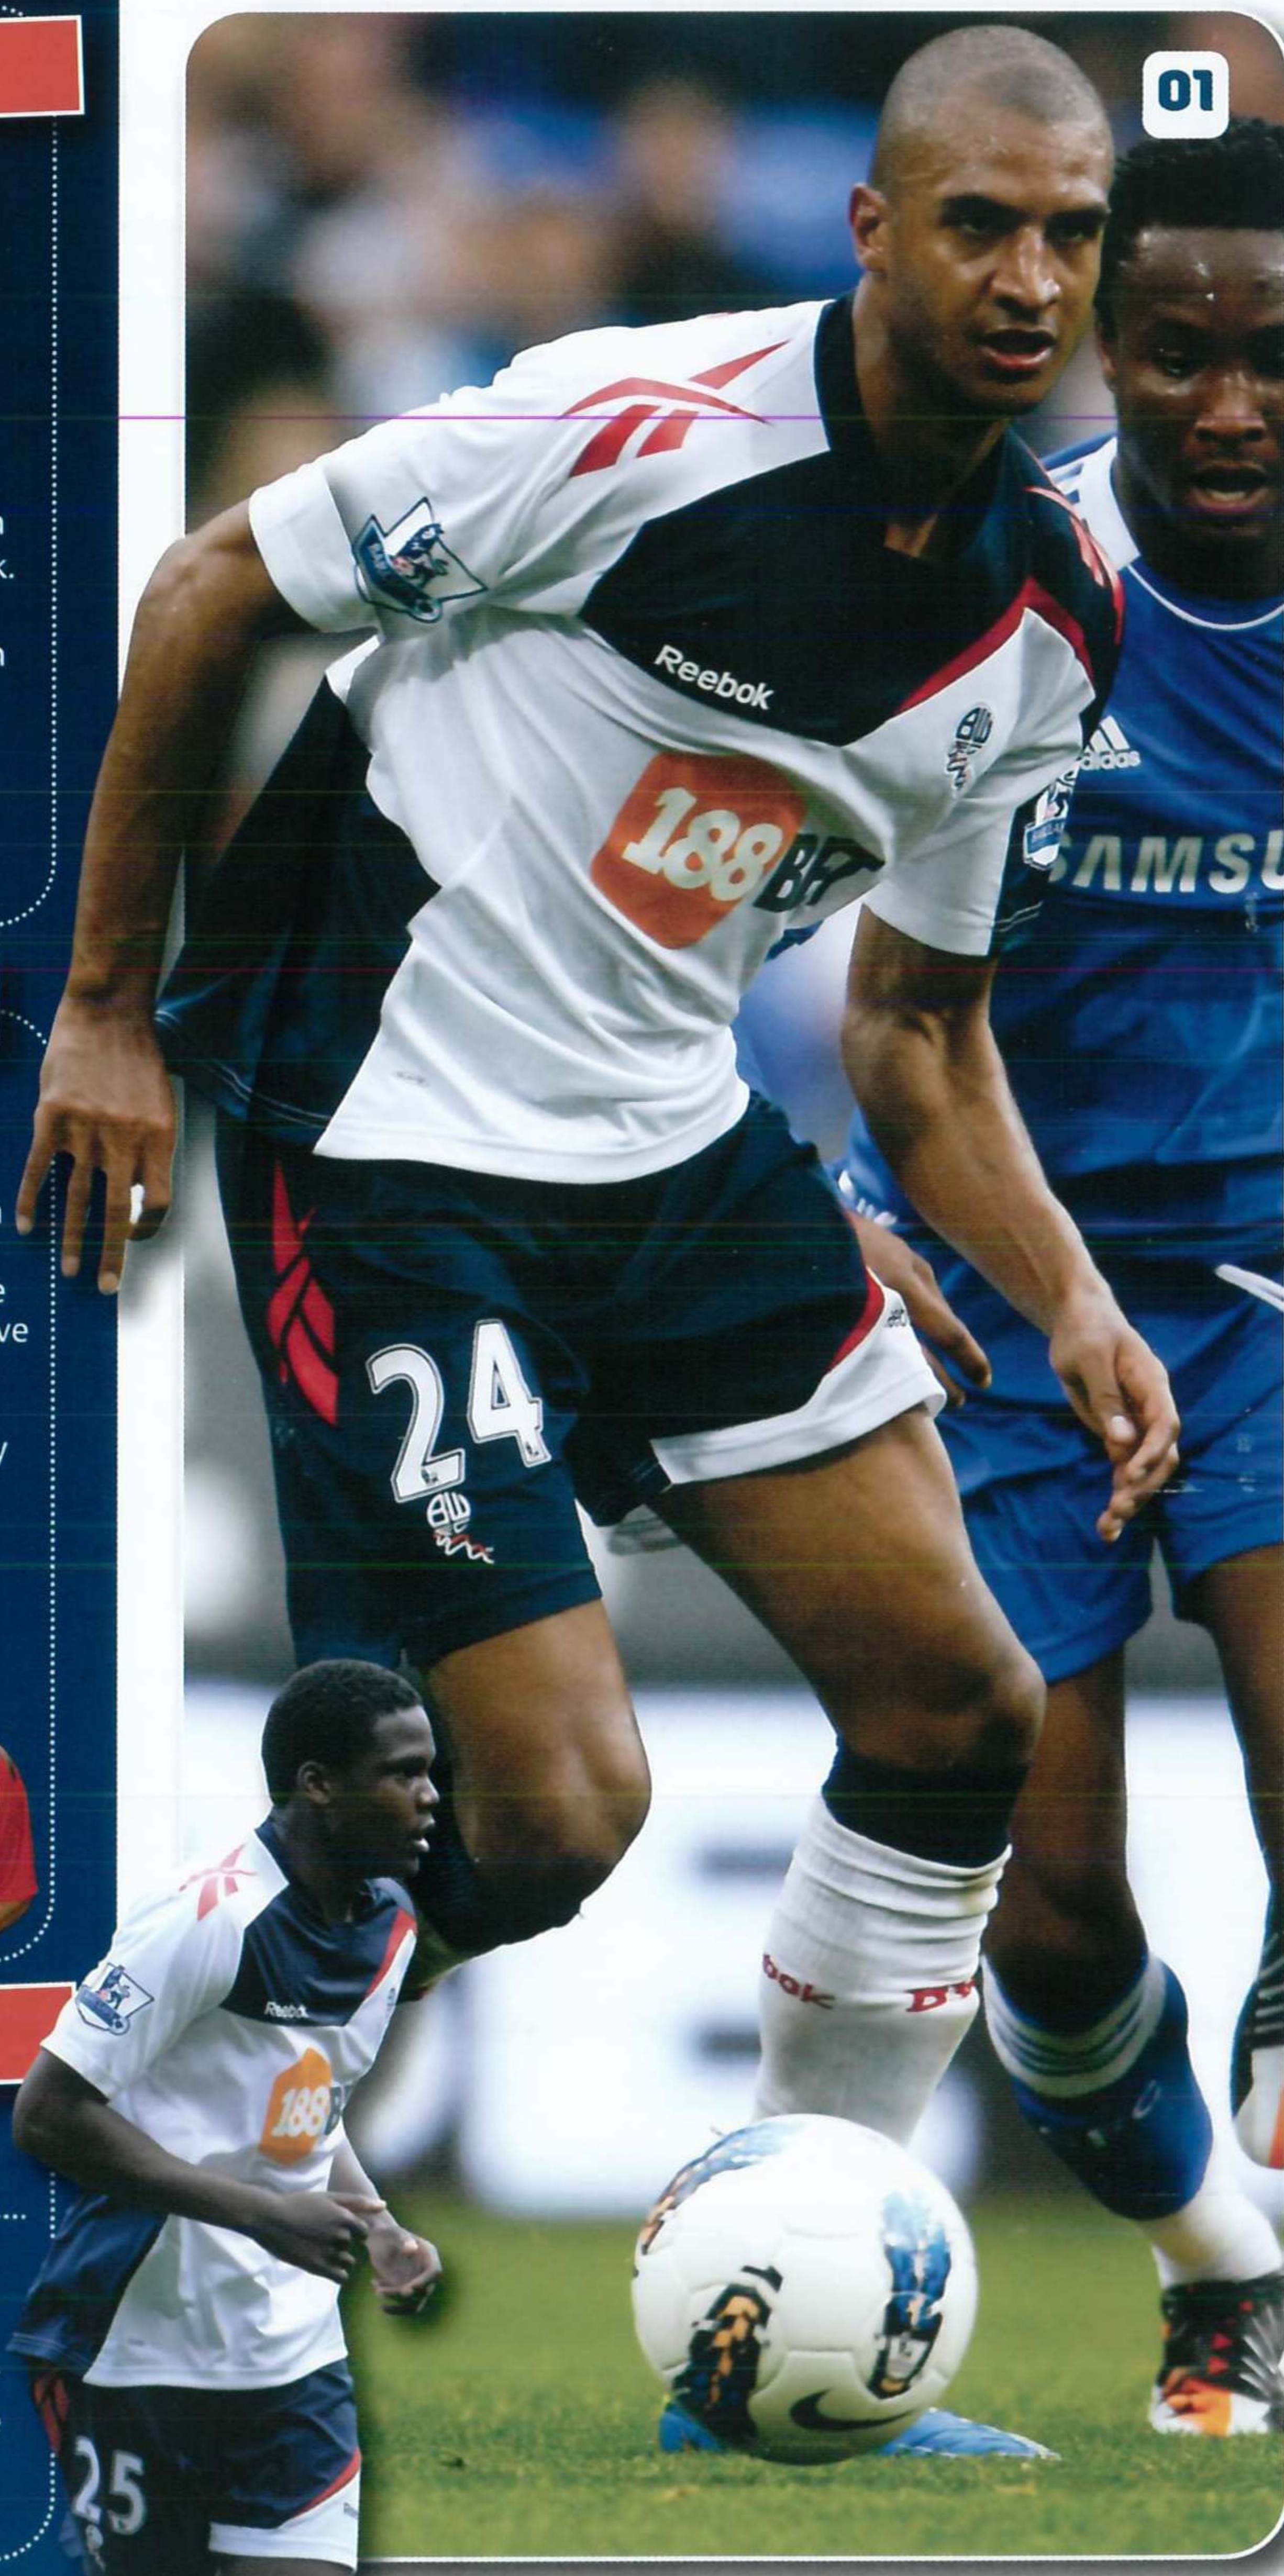

"In the second half we were terrific and scored a very good goal, but it's not good enough to play for just 45 minutes."

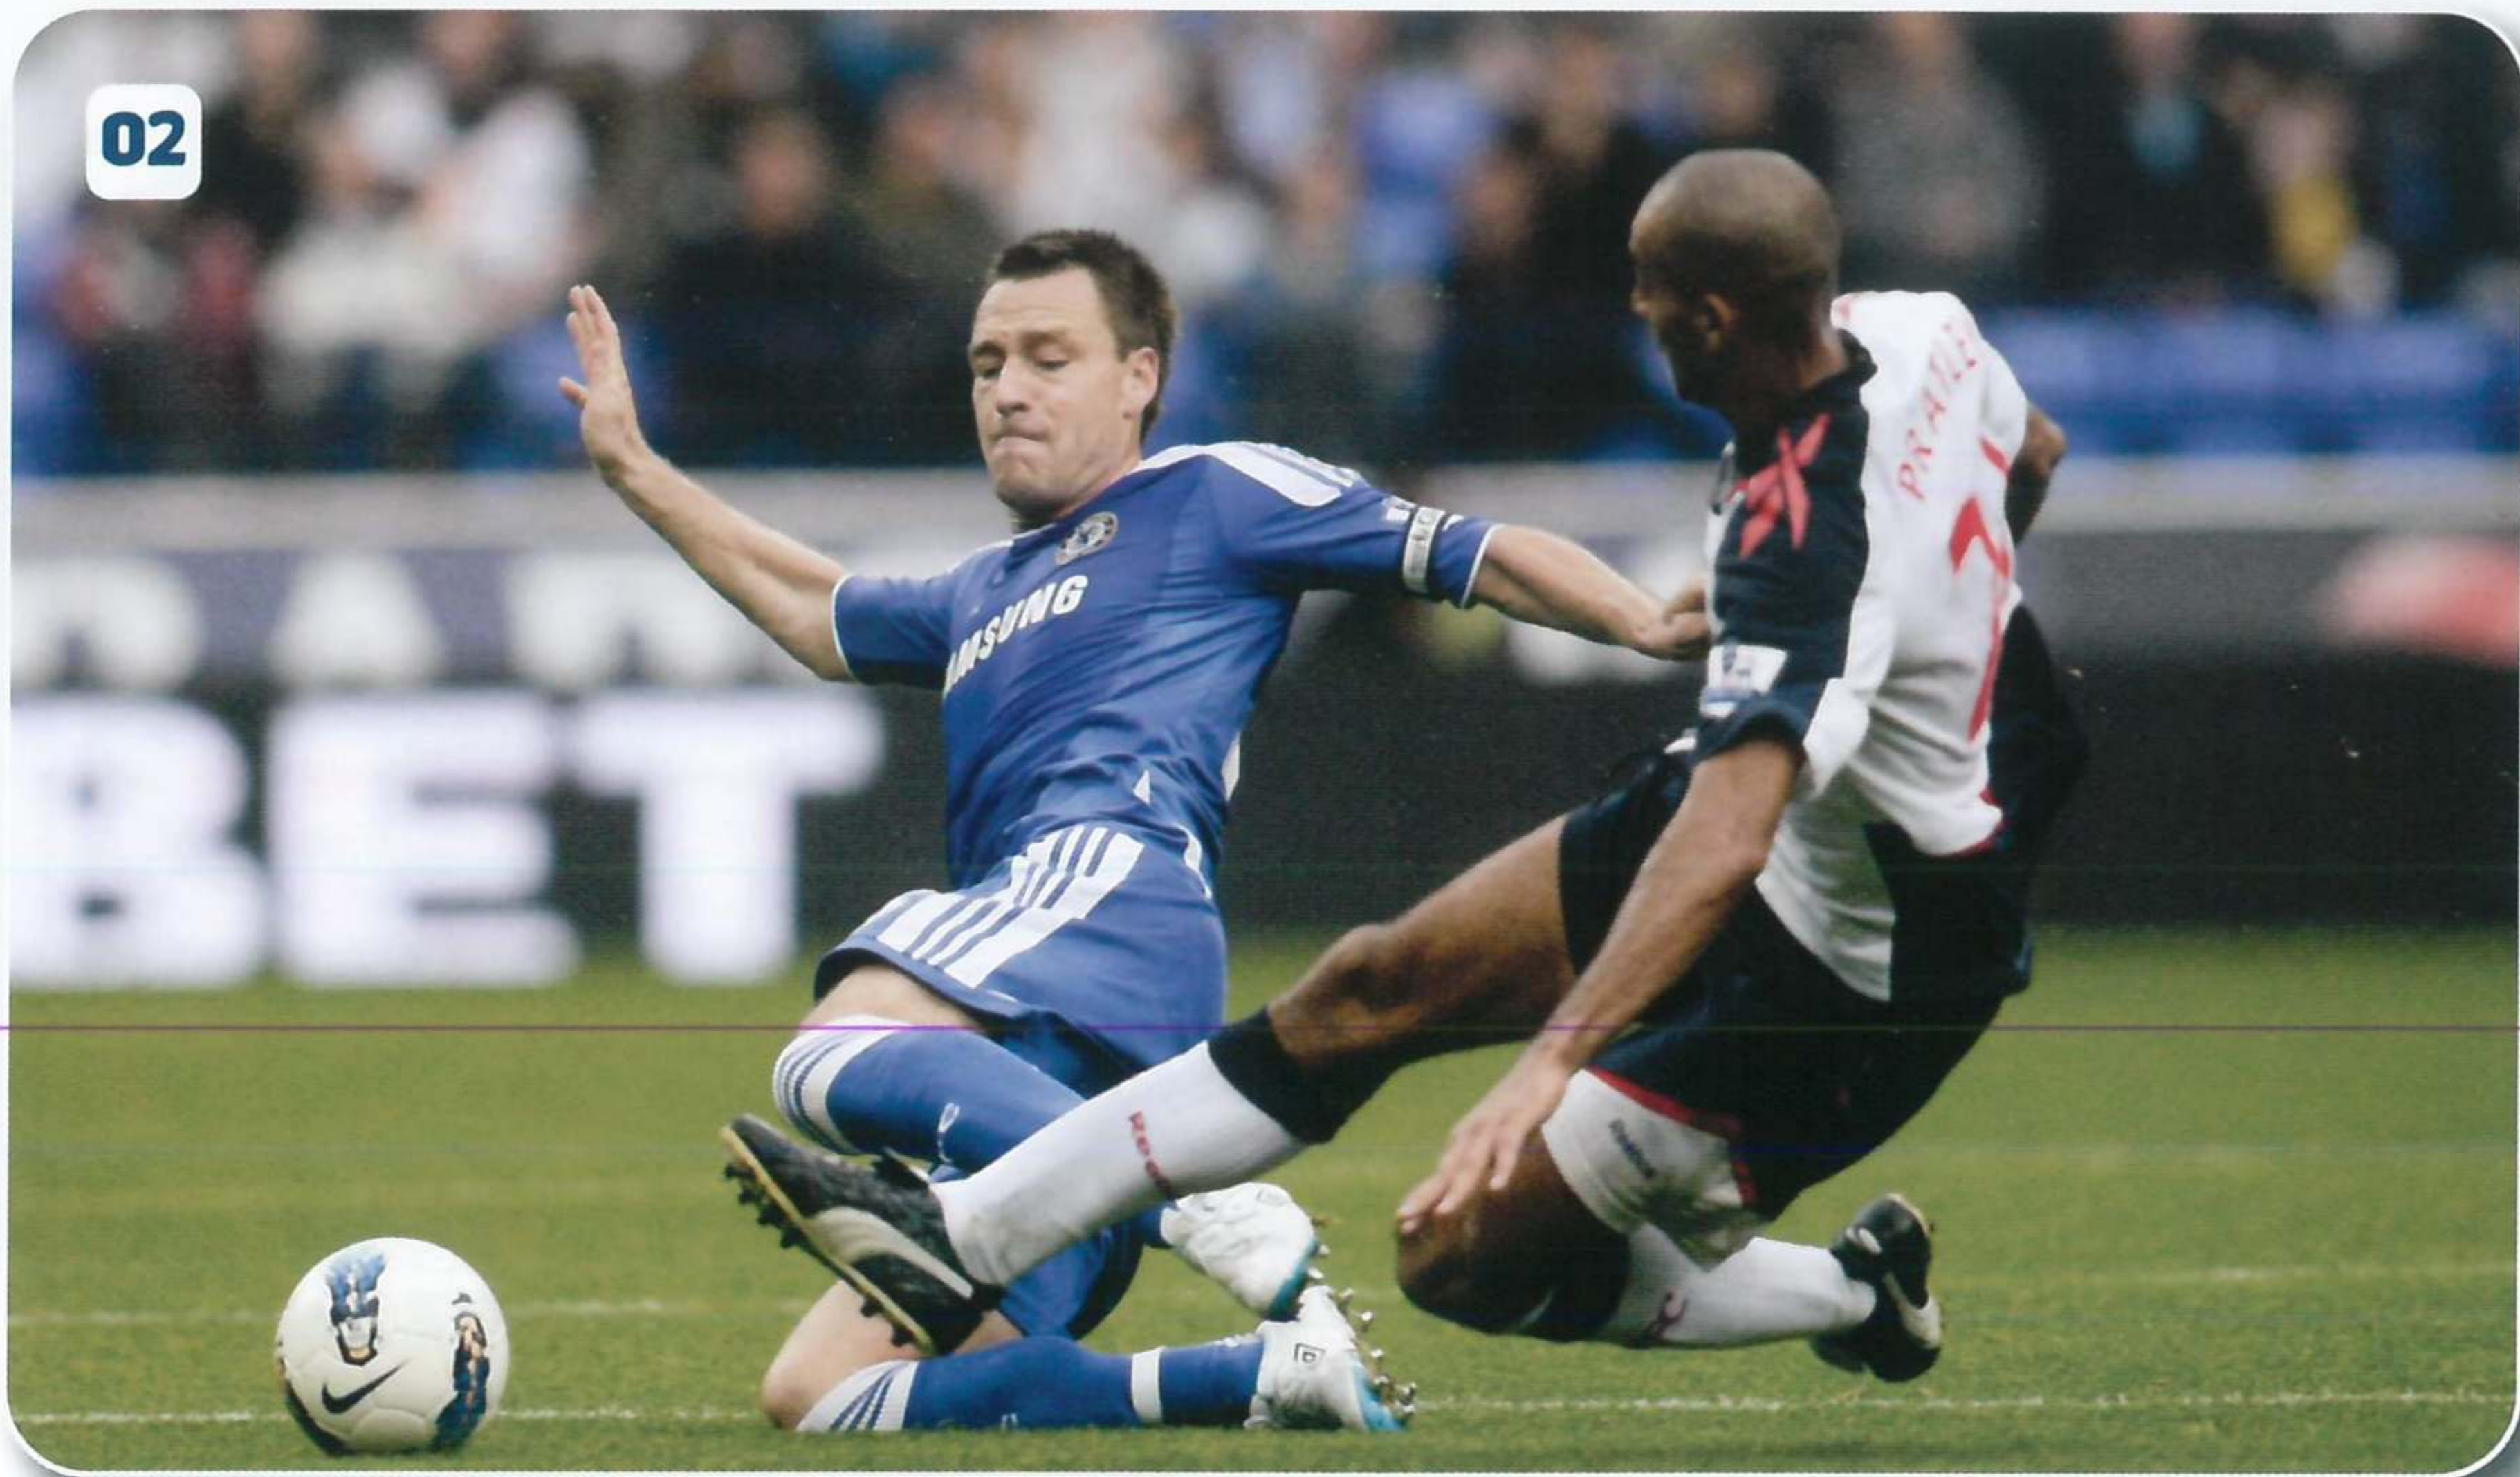

MAN OF THE MATCH

DEDRYCK BOYATA

The on loan defender is starting to settle into life with Wanderers. He was in the right place at the right time to head home his first goal for the club just a few minutes into the second half.

THIS WEEK AT WANDERERS

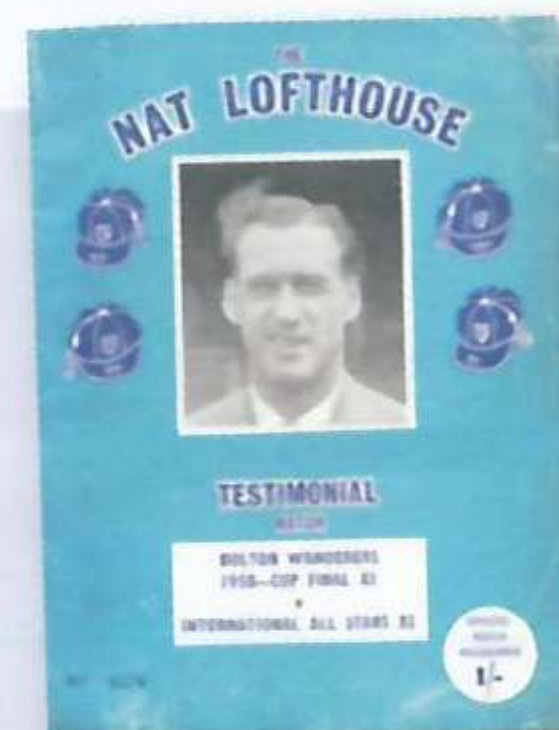

By Will Hucker

Each issue the official matchday programme explores Bolton Wanderers stories and events from yesteryear which made the headlines during that respective week

16 OCTOBER 1961

Bolton legend Nat Lofthouse was awarded a testimonial when a Bolton 1958 team played an All-Star England side. The game itself was hugely entertaining, with 11 goals scored in a 6-5 thriller which went in Wanderers' favour. There was an attendance of 22,000 at Burnden Park, with a total of £3,000 raised in gate receipts. The likes of Sir Stanley Matthews, Sir Tom Finney, Don Revie and Billy Liddell all turned out for the All-Star team.

On this day, Sam Allardyce was born in Dudley, West Midlands. The youth team product made a name for himself with some commanding displays in the centre of defence, making 231 appearances in two spells at Burnden Park. In 1999 he returned as manager and oversaw the team's promotion to the Premier League in 2001.

20 OCTOBER 1984

George Oghani, in his first season of league football announced himself on the scene with a hat-trick against Lancashire rivals Preston North End in a comfortable 4-0 victory over the Lilywhites.

20 OCTOBER 2001

In Bolton's first season back in the big time, Wanderers upset the odds as they travelled to Old Trafford and returned home with all three points.

A thunderous Kevin Nolan volley and a Michael Ricketts strike gave Wanderers a 2-1 victory that will live long in the memory. Then-manager Sam Allardyce also paid tribute to the defensive displays from Bruno N'Gotty and Jussi Jaaskelainen, with the goalkeeper making an incredible double save from Paul Scholes and Andy Cole.

22 OCTOBER 2006

Jussi Jaaskelainen grabbed the headlines as Wanderers completed a smash and grab 1-0 win over Blackburn at Ewood Park.

Ivan Campo scored the only goal of the game, but it was Jaaskelainen's contribution that got people talking. The Finn saved two penalties in the space of three minutes, firstly from Benni McCarthy and then Jason Roberts to preserve a derby victory.

Bolton played their first ever FA Cup game, a home clash against local rivals Eagley. The game ended in a 5-5 draw but Wanderers won the replay 1-0 to advance in the competition.

A SOCIAL EVENING WITH AN INTERNATIONAL FEEL

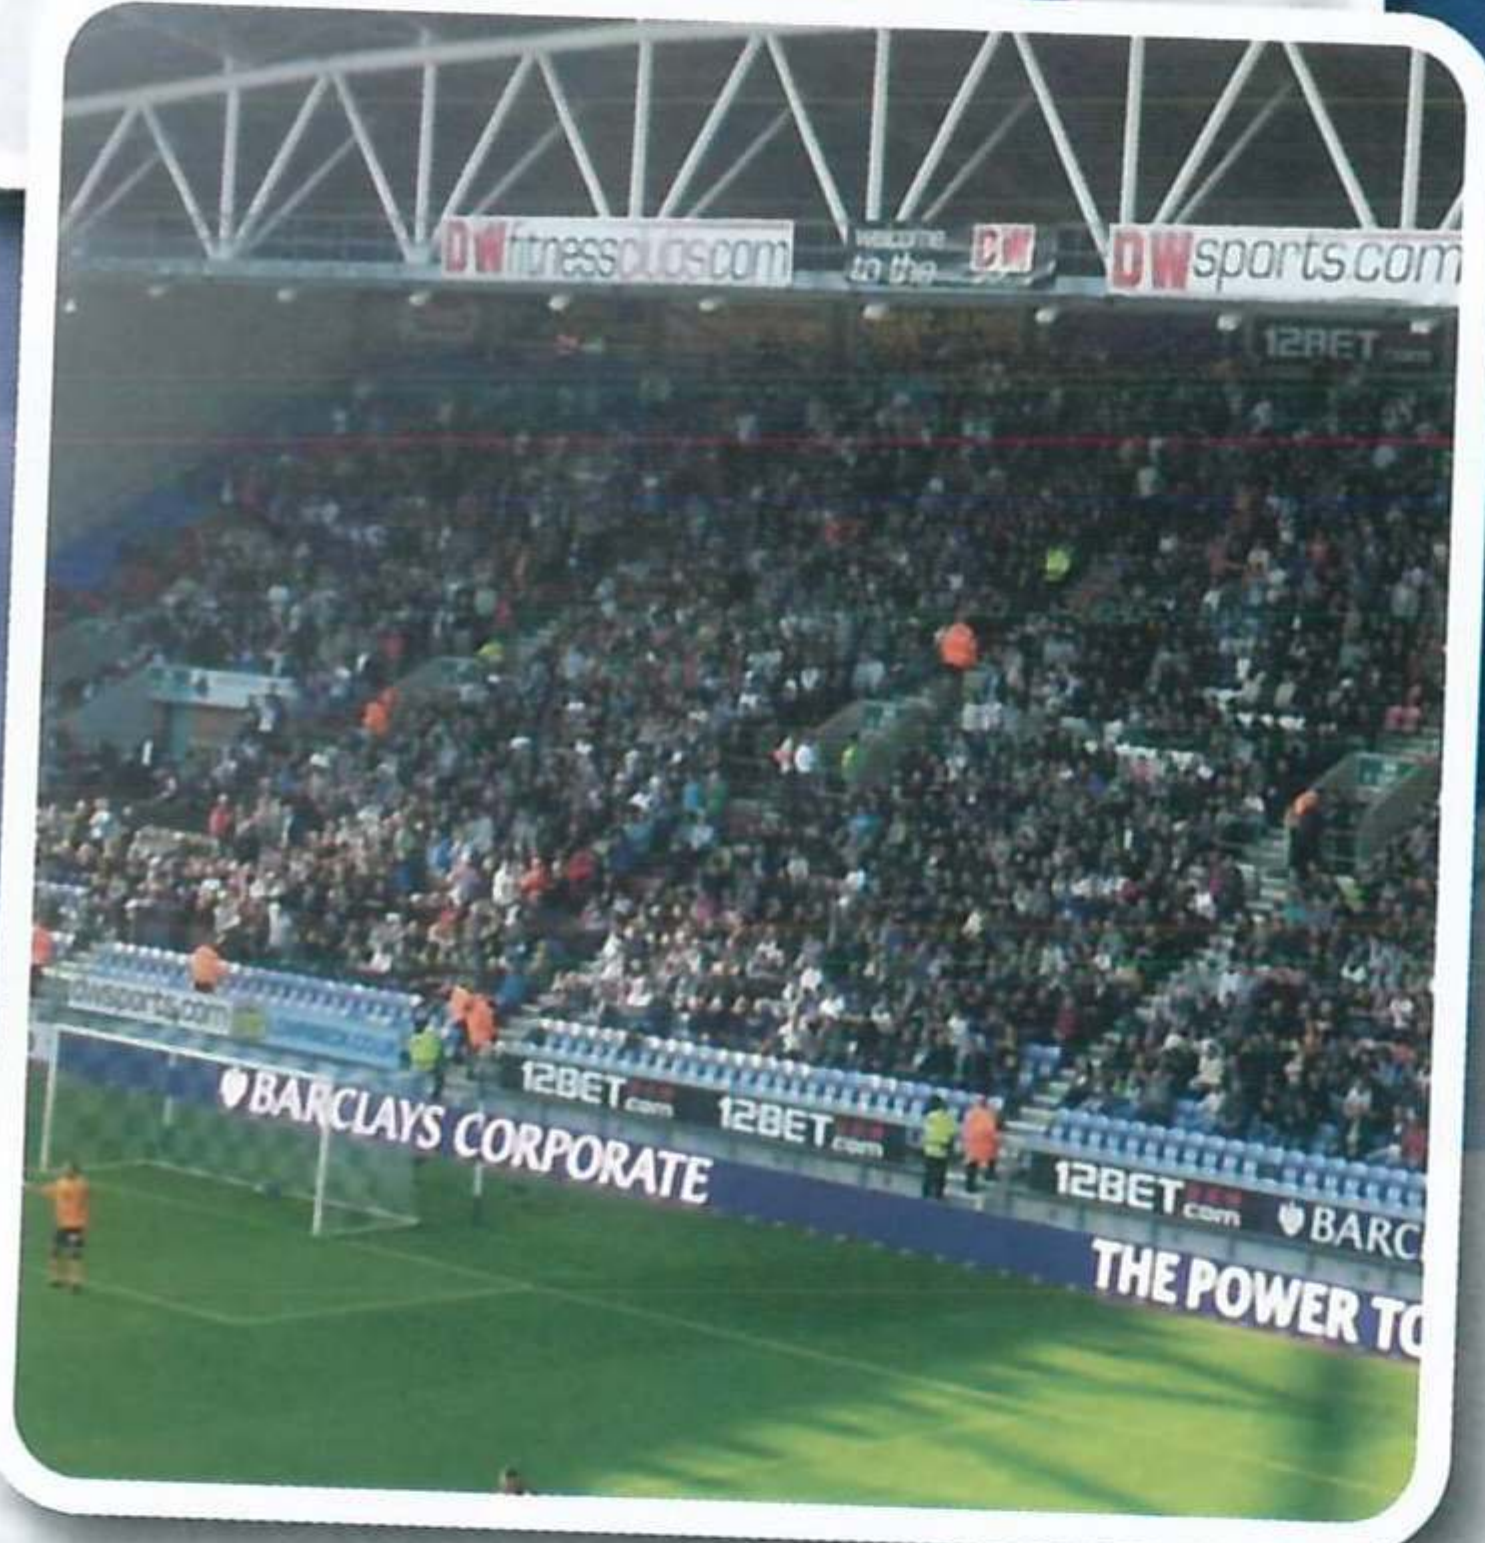

Carrying on from last season when the BWSA had the club's Video Analysts as special guests talking about their riveting work that goes on in the background up at Euxton, last month's Social Evening saw Dave Bailey and his team from the Bolton Wanderers International Soccer School call in to discuss how they raise the club's profile on foreign shores.

The Lion of Vienna Suite was spellbound with his revelations about the work Bolton Wanderers do around the world, something most people at the event were totally unaware of. A big thank-you goes to Dave and his team, and also to Adam Bogdan and David Ngog who made appearances and took part in a question and answer session.

EXCLUSIVE DISCOUNT AT BOLTON CENTRAL

As all the social events this season coincide with the Bolton Central's late night opening, the BWSA have negotiated an exclusive 10 percent discount to all our members who decide to call in to the store on social nights, the first being the annual general meeting later this month on Thursday October 27.

The offer is strictly for members only so production of membership card will be required.

SUPPORT AT WIGAN

Having had the fixture list from hell, it was great to get a positive result at Wigan Athletic last weekend. A lot of supporters have been to every game Bolton have played at Wigan but Saturday was one to remember and a really satisfying day. The fans were absolutely brilliant from start to finish and everyone was proud to be a Wanderer.

HOW DO I JOIN THE BWSA?

There are a number of ways of joining the Official Supporters Club...

This can be done by visiting our website www.thebwsa.co.uk and filling out the online application form or you can download it and send it to the following address.

Media Watch with JACK DEARDEN

BBC RADIO MANCHESTER'S JACK DEARDEN CONTINUES HIS COLUMN IN THE MATCHDAY PROGRAMME.

Everyone at Bolton has an interesting week to look forward to with three big matches in the space of seven days, starting with today's meeting against Sunderland. And it's great to be entering these games with the win at Wigan under the belt.

There's no doubt that the result at the DW Stadium was a big shot in the arm for Owen Coyle and his team. I was really pleased for the lads because they played very well and the margin of the win could and should have been a lot more. But given the circumstances after the recent run of games, it was certainly a welcome three points.

We can't get away from the fact that it was a difficult start to the season and that results didn't go as everyone would have liked, but there is now the platform to push on and climb the league table.

One thing that I felt was particularly important last Saturday was that Bolton got the first goal of the game within the opening few minutes. It was a complete reverse from the Chelsea game when they conceded more or less straight away from the kick-off.

No matter what level you play at, but especially in the Premier League, it is so important because it completely affects the dynamics of the match and gives teams that extra bit of confidence at the start of the game. You look at Manchester City in midweek – they fell behind against Villarreal after just five minutes and they were on the back-foot had to chase the rest of the game. Fortunately they did manage to secure the win with virtually the last kick, but there was no doubt that they had to huff and puff their way through the entire game and couldn't play in a manner that they would have liked to.

Like I said earlier, the Bolton players will be looking to take the momentum into today's game against a Sunderland team which haven't had the best of starts either. It's been a couple of years since Wanderers managed to beat the Black Cats so hopefully they can put the record right today.

It is important the team does look to kick-on because with winnable games coming thick and fast there is the opportunity to push up the league in next to no time. A few positive results and the team can find themselves sitting in midtable going into the next international break at the start of November. Owen Coyle has always consistently said that performances and results will get better, and I agree with him. I'm confident that in a month's time the league table will look a lot better from a Wanderers perspective.

OWEN GIVING THE FANS A THUMBS UP AT WIGAN

Wedged in between today's game and the trip to Swansea is the Carling Cup tie at Arsenal in midweek, and I feel that the players will go to the Emirates Stadium with a point to prove after the league defeat there four weeks ago. It remains to be seen what teams both managers will select, but if I was a player I would be really excited about this game. It's a chance to play under the lights at a huge stadium with a quarter-final place up for grabs in a major competition – there really is an incentive to go out and play well. I know it's a bit of a drag going to London for a midweek match but I'm definitely looking forward to it.

Finally, I'd just like to say a couple of words about David Ngog, who got his goals tally for the club up and running last weekend. He has impressed me since he joined the Whites and one of his main attributes is his pace and movement. The way he brought the ball under control, shifted it on to his left and then beat Ali Al-Habsi with a tidy finish shows that he has an eye for goal. Fingers crossed it's the first of many in a Bolton shirt.

Thanks for reading,
Jack.

THE MANAGER

STEVE BRUCE

Steve Bruce is approaching the midway point in his third season at Sunderland. The 50-year-old arrived at the Stadium of Light in June 2009 on a three-year contract following previous spells managing Sheffield United, Huddersfield, Crystal Palace, Birmingham and Wigan - twice.

In his first season at Sunderland, despite a run of 14 games without a win, Bruce led the Black Cats to a 13th place finish in the Premier League. In February 2011 Bruce signed an extension to his contract keeping him at Sunderland until 2014.

The former centre-back enjoyed a distinguished playing career which included spells at Gillingham, Norwich, Manchester United, Birmingham and Sheffield United.

He was often described as being one of the best defenders never to have won full international honours for England, despite his outstanding success at Old Trafford, where his partnership with Gary Pallister laid the platform for the club's first league title for 26 years in 1993.

NAMES AND GAMES

Football historian LEIGH EDWARDS takes a trip down memory lane

Legends HEAD TO HEAD

PAUL JONES

Stylish central defender Paul Jones was ever-present in Bolton Wanderers' 1972/73 Third Division title triumph. A former apprentice at Burnden Park, he turned professional in June 1970 and was also ever-present as Bolton reached the League Cup semi-finals in 1976/77. He also helped win the Second Division title in 1977/78, netting 38 goals in 445 League outings prior to joining Huddersfield Town in July 1983. Moving to Oldham Athletic in December 1985, he later played for Blackpool, Wigan Athletic, Rochdale, Stockport County, Bramhall and Droylsden. He has held various coaching posts and scouted for several clubs including Bolton.

DAVE WATSON

England international central defender Dave Watson gained the first 14 of his 65 caps while at Sunderland. He played for Notts County and Rotherham United prior to joining Sunderland in December 1970. Ever-present in 1971/72, he starred in their 1973 FA Cup final triumph, netting 27 goals in 177 League games before moving to Manchester City in June 1975. Helping win the League Cup in 1976 and finish League Championship runners-up in 1976/77, he then had spells with Werder Bremen, Southampton, Stoke City, Vancouver Whitecaps, Derby County, Notts County again and Kettering Town. He has since run his own marketing business in Nottingham.

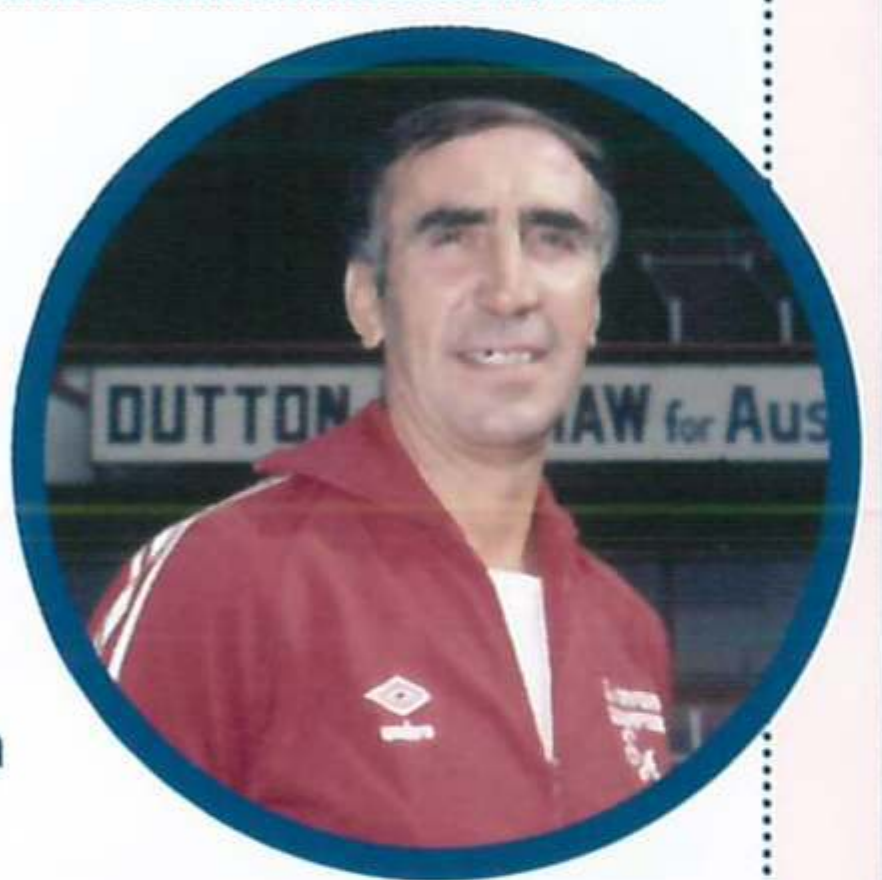

MANAGING TO SUCCEED

JOHNNY COCHRANE

Scottish manager Johnny Cochrane took Sunderland to the League Championship in 1935/36 when they scored a club record 109 goals and finished eight points clear at the top. He played for Johnstone Thistle, Elderslie Amateurs and St Johnstone, becoming their secretary, then took charge of St Mirren in July 1916. Guiding them to Scottish Cup final success for the first time in 1926, he became Sunderland's manager in May 1928. They were twice FA Cup semi-finalists, then League Championship runners-up in 1934/35 and FA Cup winners in 1937. He remained in charge until March 1939, then briefly managed Reading and died in December 1961.

BOB STOKOE

Bob Stokoe managed Sunderland's 1973 FA Cup final triumph. A former centre-half, he starred in Newcastle United's 1955 FA Cup final success and became Bury's player-boss in December 1961. He then managed Charlton Athletic, Rochdale, Carlisle United and Blackpool prior to taking charge of Sunderland in November 1972. Also plotting their 1975/76 Second Division title triumph, he resigned in October 1976, then managed Bury, Blackpool and Rochdale again before guiding Carlisle United to promotion in 1981/82. He had a spell as Sunderland's caretaker-boss at the end of 1986/87, then scouted for Chelsea and died in February 2004.

PETER REID

Ex-England international midfielder Peter Reid managed Sunderland to the First Division title in 1995/96 and 1998/99. Signing professional for Bolton in May 1974, he was a key figure as Wanderers were League Cup semi-finalists in 1976/77 and won the Second Division title in 1977/78. He joined Everton in December 1982, starring as they won the League Championship twice, FA Cup and ECWC, moving to QPR in February 1989. Later Manchester City's player-boss, he managed Sunderland from March 1995 until October 2002, also taking them to the 1997/98 First Division play-off final. He has since managed Leeds United, Coventry and Plymouth.

MEMORABLE MATCHES

03/04/53 BOLTON WANDERERS 5 SUNDERLAND 0 DIVISION 1

Nat Lofthouse grabbed a hat-trick as Bolton Wanderers stormed to their biggest win of the season at home to Sunderland. Bill Ridding's side took the lead on 21 minutes when Lofthouse headed in Eric Bell's high centre. Lofthouse then missed two easier chances and Willie Moir hit the bar before the interval. Bolton doubled their lead in the 46th minute when Lofthouse smashed the ball past Tom Fairley, then Lofthouse completed his hat-trick with a powerful volley three minutes later. Bobby Langton chipped the ball over Fairley for Bolton's fourth goal on 62 minutes and Tommy Neill completed the scoring with his first League goal on 86 minutes.

Bolton Wanderers celebrated Premier League survival after this victory at home to Sunderland on the 50th anniversary of the 1958 FA Cup final triumph. Bolton had taken 10 points from a possible 12 before this match but started nervously and Sunderland had an effort disallowed on 18 minutes after Michael Chopra fouled Ali Al-Habsi. Both Gary Cahill and Kevin Davies missed with headers before Bolton took the lead in the 42nd minute when El-Hadji-Diouf scored a brilliant goal from Kevin Nolan's corner. Diouf headed against the post on 54 minutes and the game was heading for a nail-biting climax until Daryl Murphy's own goal on 83 minutes.

29/11/08 SUNDERLAND 1 BOLTON WANDERERS 4 PREMIER LEAGUE

Johan Elmander scored twice as Bolton Wanderers hammered Sunderland at the Stadium of Light. It was Roy Keane's 100th match as Sunderland's manager and they went ahead on 12 minutes when Kieran Richardson and Steed Malbranque set up Djibril Cisse to score. Bolton drew level in the 18th minute when Matt Taylor sent a looping header over Craig Gordon from Gretar Steinsson's high ball. Gary Cahill fired Bolton into the lead three minutes later and Cisse had an effort disallowed before Elmander netted Bolton's third goal with a right-footed drive on 39 minutes. Elmander scored with another shot in the 55th minute and missed two more clear chances.

THE GROUNDS

Sunderland played at the Blue House Field, Groves Field, Horatio Street, Abbs Field and Newcastle Road before moving to Roker Park in 1898. The record crowd there was 75,118 for the FA Cup sixth round replay against Derby County in March 1933. It hosted a World Cup quarter-final, three other 1966 World Cup games, three full England internationals, an FA Cup semi-final replay and two Amateur Cup finals. The first floodlit match at Roker Park was a friendly against Dundee in December 1952. Sunderland moved to the Stadium of Light in 1997 and the record attendance there is 48,353 for the Premier League visit of Liverpool in April 2002.

SEBASTIAN LARSSON EXCLUSIVE

LARSSON: CONSISTENCY IS THE KEY BLACK CATS STAR EYES UPTURN IN FORM

73

C Sunderland may have made an inauspicious start to the season, but their decision to sign Sebastian Larsson is looking increasingly shrewd. The Sweden midfielder, 26, has scored three times for the Black Cats and twice for his country already this term, including a stunning strike at Liverpool on the opening day and another brilliant effort against his former club Arsenal last weekend.

Yet Steve Bruce's men have struggled for consistency during the opening months of the campaign. And Larsson, who joined Sunderland from Birmingham in the summer after five years at St Andrews, admits his new club need to start picking up points quickly. The Black Cats currently lie just one place above the Barclays Premier League relegation zone.

And Larsson, who was brought to Arsenal by Arsene Wenger as a teenager before Bruce took him from the Gunners to Birmingham, then to Sunderland this summer, told the official matchday programme: "I had several good years at Birmingham and I enjoyed my time there. It was time for a new challenge and time to progress my career further.

"When the opportunity came to join Sunderland I felt it was a good move for me. You look at the size of the club with the fanbase we've got and the facilities here, and it speaks for itself. It's the right place for me to be. We just need to start producing the goods on the pitch now."

Larsson, who arrived on a free transfer in June, marked his Sunderland debut with the second-half equaliser in a 1-1 draw on the opening day of the season against Liverpool at Anfield, when given room at the far post to produce a superb first-time angled volley. Yet one goal that will always be special to him is the match-winning strike he netted for Birmingham in their 3-2 victory against Tottenham in Alex McLeish's first game in charge of the Blues in December 2007.

It was his first Premier League strike and Larsson recalled: "Of course it was nice to get off to a good start by scoring against Liverpool at Anfield on the opening day of the season for Sunderland. That strike has to be there but my first Premier League goal will always be special to me. It was away to Spurs in Alex McLeish's first game in charge of Birmingham. It was 2-2 and deep into added time when I scored. We won 3-2. I always enjoy trying to get on the scoresheet and going forward it is always nice to score goals. Hopefully I can get a few more for Sunderland."

LARSSON HELPING SWEDEN QUALIFY FOR EURO 2012

Larsson, who scored his second Sunderland goal against Stoke at the Stadium of Light, is confident there is plenty more to come from his side ahead of today's clash at the Reebok Stadium.

He said: "We just haven't been consistent but we know the kind of levels that we can reach and we know we can do really well. It's just about keeping that level of consistency. We want to progress and I suppose that means trying to better what the team did last season. It's a tough league but we have the ability – we just have to prove it on the pitch now."

Yet Larsson is predicting a tough test for his side today. Both sides have struggled in the opening weeks of the campaign, and the Swede added: "Bolton is always a very tough game and they have made real progress since Owen Coyle took over. We know we are in for a tough game and are going to have to play to our maximum to get a result."

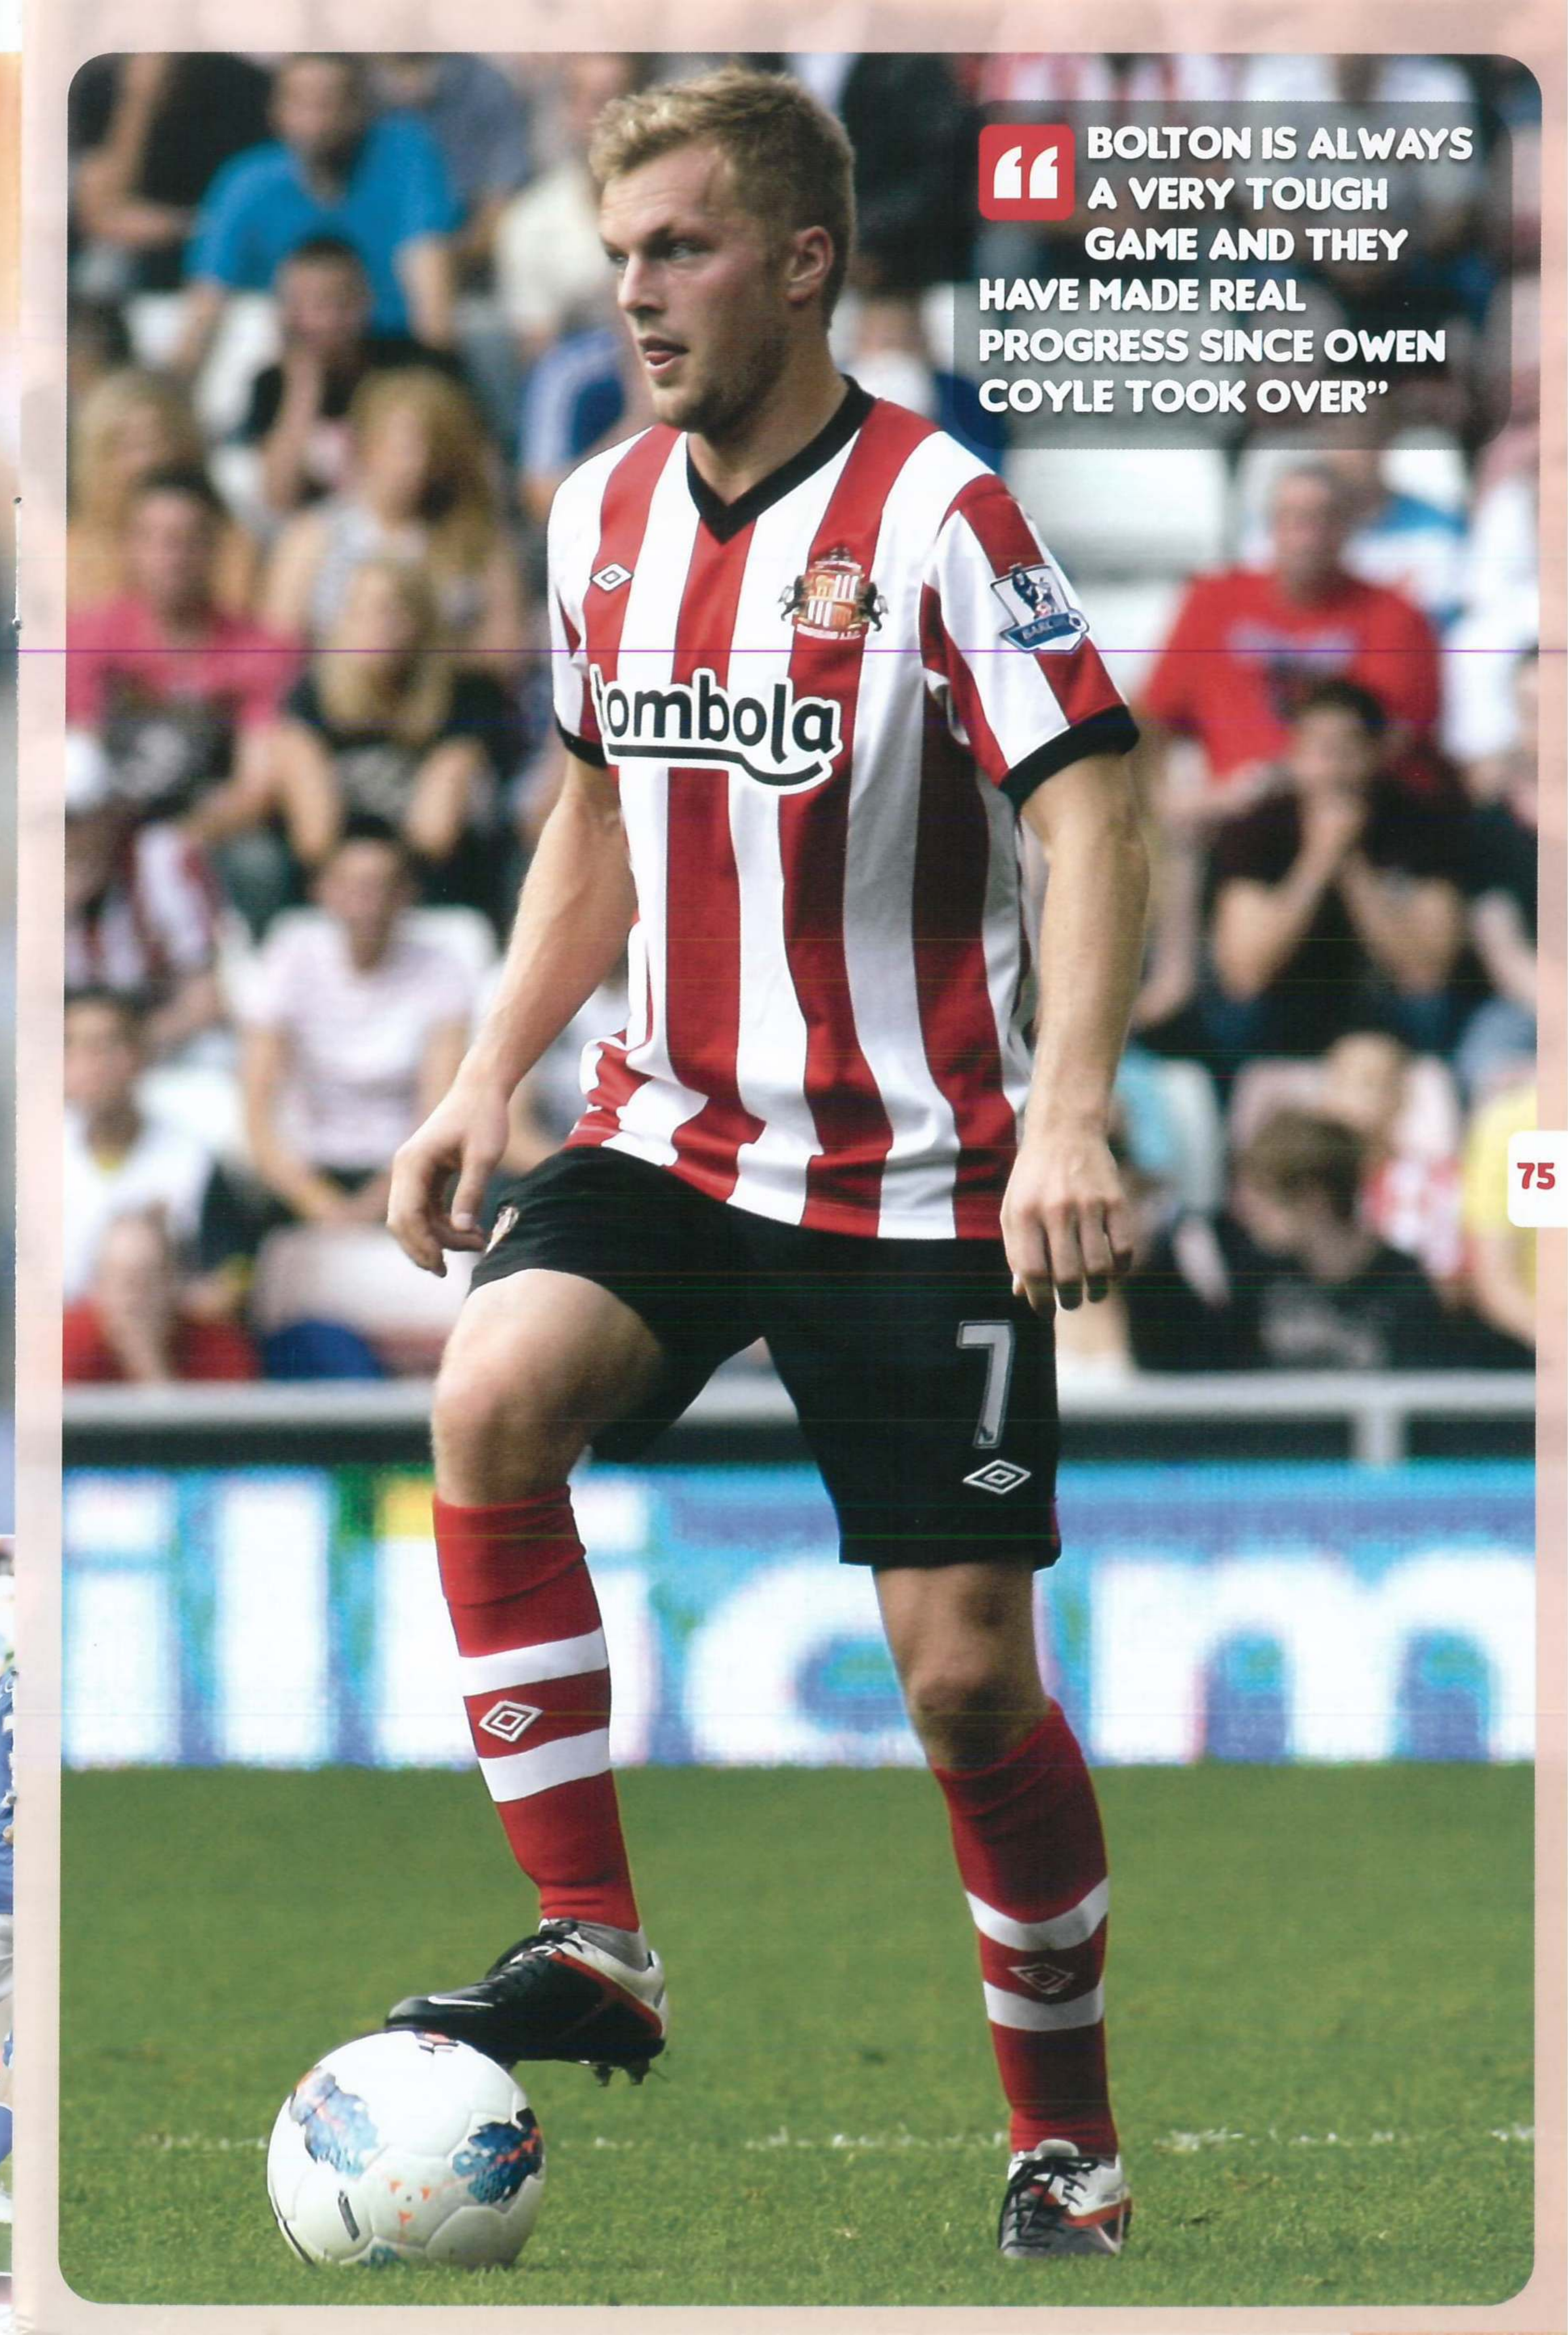

Larsson says stopping striker Kevin Davies is vital to his side's hopes of achieving a result today. He reasoned: "It's hard to look much further than Kevin Davies, he's a tricky guy and knows exactly how to perform in the Barclays Premier League. He's a tough guy to play against and he scores goals. Overall he's a difficult player to keep quiet. He's been the leader of Bolton for a very long time and if you manage to keep him quiet then you have a good chance of getting a positive result."

Larsson helped his country qualify for Euro 2012 with two goalscoring performances in the last international break, finding the net in back to back wins over Finland and Holland.

Now he is looking forward to next summer's Championships, saying: "We managed to qualify and that's brilliant. I managed to play most of the games in the qualifying campaign which was really good. Hopefully I can play a part next summer at the European Championships."

INFORMATION CORRECT AT THE TIME OF GOING TO PRESS

Bolton Wanderers Football Club would like to remind all supporters that the Reebok Stadium is a NO SMOKING VENUE and would ask that this policy is respected at all times.

EMERGENCY PROCEDURE

Announcements will be preceded by a distinctive two-toned signal. In the event of an emergency evacuation we will ask all spectators to listen very carefully to the public address announcements which will direct you to the evacuation route you should take. An evacuation may concern one or more stands in the Stadium. If the evacuation does not affect your stand, please remain where you are unless directed otherwise. Please respond quickly, but calmly, to the announcements and to the requests of the Stewards and Police Officers to ensure a safe evacuation of the Stadium.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The Players, Directors and Staff of Bolton Wanderers Football Club wish to make clear our abhorrence of all forms of discrimination. Any fans who are caught abusing players or fans because of their race, gender, age, disability, religious belief or sexual orientation will face arrest and may be prosecuted. Bolton Wanderers celebrates diversity and asks you to support your club. Should you encounter any form of this unacceptable behaviour please email the club at feedback@bwfc.co.uk

BWSA SOCIAL

Adam Bogdan and David Ngog were the VIP guests at the international themed BWSA September social at the Reebok Stadium, where supporters quizzed them on their international careers to date, life inside the dressing room at Bolton Wanderers and their hopes and ambitions for the future - both for their countries and for the Wanderers.

QUARTET GO GLOBAL!

Wanderers stars Ricardo Gardner, Jussi Jaaskelainen, Martin Petrov and Tuncay were the guests of honour at the Bolton Playing for Success Study@BWFC annual 'Go Global' event at the Reebok Stadium following training last week.

Now in its fourth year, Go Global is an annual educational study session with school children from across Bolton, who are given the opportunity to explore the diverse languages and cultures that are shared by the club's international players to help encourage a mutual respect and understanding of our multi-cultural landscape.

The primary and secondary school pupils worked in small groups with each player to find out more about the customs and traditions of each of their home countries as well as showcasing their knowledge of the players' homeland and tasting their traditional cuisine.

WANDERERS DUO ATTEND ANTI-RACISM WORKSHOP

Following training on last week, Wanderers duo Darren Pratley and Gretar Steinsson attended a Show Racism the Red Card educational workshop at the Reebok Stadium to talk to local primary school children from across Bolton about challenging racism in sport and everyday life.

At the event, hosted by BWCT, Darren and Gretar offered the school children the opportunity to quiz them about all aspects of racism. The Wanderers duo spoke to the children about how to challenge racism in the communities in which they live and also urged them to respect the differences between people and their classmates, regardless of their ethnicity, faith, culture or nationality.

Established in January 1996, Show Racism the Red Card is an anti-racism charity that harnesses the high profile of professional footballers to combat racism by producing educational resources for schools and developing activities to encourage people to tackle racism.

DEFENSIVE PAIR ATTEND SPORTS PRESENTATION NIGHT

Rounding off a busy day of community visits by members of the first team squad, Wanderers centre-halves Gary Cahill and David Wheeler attended St James's annual sports presentation night on Thursday evening to distribute certificates and trophies to pupils who have excelled at sports in the last academic year.

An audience of over 250 pupils, teachers and parents filled the sports hall at St James's Church of England School and Sports College in Farnworth to recognise the achievements of pupils from Year Seven to Year Ten who have been awarded school colours for individual and team contributions in a wide variety of sports including football, rugby, cross-country, swimming and table tennis.

The sports presentation evening opened with a speech of congratulations to all attending pupils from Headmistress Mrs Lewycky before Gary and David were introduced to the crowd by the Year Ten Sports Leaders, taking part in a short question and answer session where the duo were asked about their career highlights to date, worst dressed player at the football club and hobbies outside of football.

Following on from the short Q&A session, the formal business of the evening began to take place with over 150 pupils being presented with school colours by Gary and David for their achievements in the wide variety of sports offered by the school.

Pupils were then recognised for outstanding individual and team successes over the past academic year including representing the county in cross country and rugby, playing in the Bolton Wanderers Ladies team and many more.

The final trophies of the evening were awarded to one Sports Boy and one Sports Girl from each of the attending four school years before Gary and David ended their visit to St James's by being interviewed by the school's media team.

MOMENTS OF BRILLIANCE FROM WANDERERS PAST AND PRESENT

Bolton Wanderers' courageous captain Gudni Bergsson brought his career in football to an end on the final of day the 2002/03 season after helping the Whites preserve their top-flight status with victory against Middlesbrough.

The Icelandic defender left to a heroes reception on a day remember as Bolton stayed up with a 2-1 win, condemning West Ham United to the drop.

During his days as a player with Bolton, both at Burnden Park and the Reebok, Bergsson became a huge fans' favourite. He was the trailblazer when it comes to the club's Icelandic tradition and takes his place at number four in Bolton Wanderers' all-time greatest players, lining-up behind John McGinlay, Jay-Jay Okocha and Nat Lofthouse.

With Bolton, Bergsson started at the top, making his Wanderers debut at Wembley in the 1995 Coca-Cola Cup Final against Liverpool. It was the first of 319 games for the club, the majority of which he wore the captain's armband.

Now working as a lawyer in Iceland, every season the 46-year-old will make a pilgrimage back to Bolton to watch his former team in action and catch-up with some old pals.
